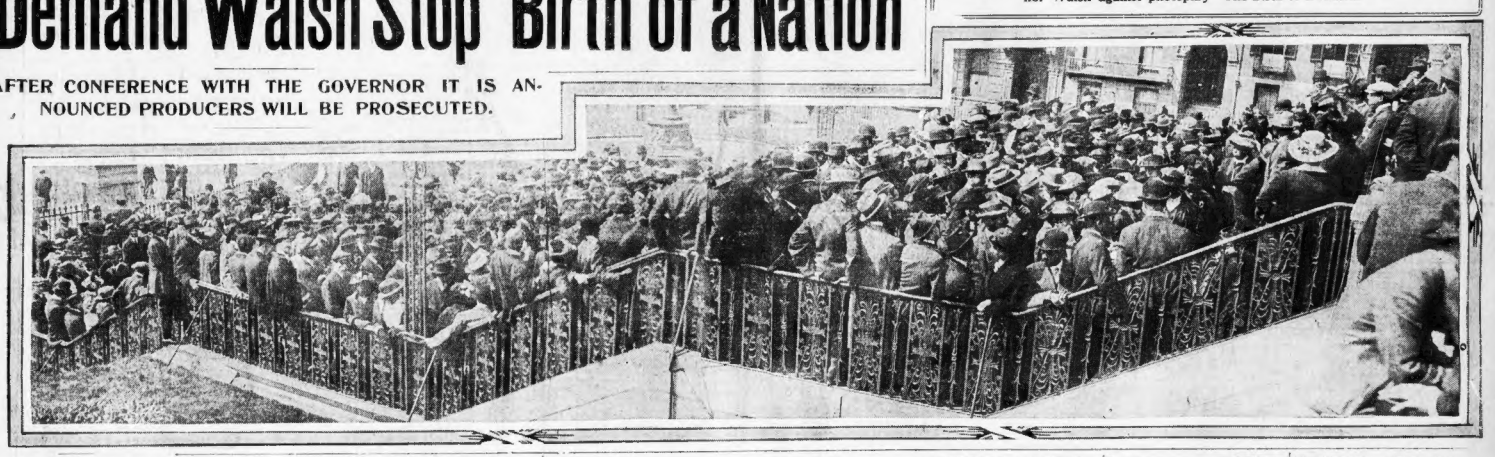
Demand Walsh Stop 'Birth of a Nation'

AFTER CONFERENCE WITH THE GOVERNOR IT IS ANNOUNCED PRODUCERS WILL BE PROSECUTED.



Section of the crowd that filled steps of the State House today in protest to Governor Walsh against photoplay "The Birth of a Nation."

As a result of a protest made at the State House today by a crowd of more than 1,000 negroes, Governor Walsh and a committee of the protesting people agreed upon a plan of criminal prosecution of the producers of the film "The Birth of a Nation," now being given at the Tremont Theatre.

Prosecution will be asked for under Section 367 of the Acts of 1910, prohibiting "suggestive" entertainments and providing for a fine of $500 or imprisonment for a year or both for the producers of such entertainments.

"It has not been decided whether the Police Commissioner of Boston or the colored people of the city will begin this prosecution, but it will be brought at once," said former Assistant Attorney-General of the United States William H. Lewis, a member of the committee which called upon the Governor.

While the army of remonstrants was massed peaceably on the broad steps of the Bulfinch entrance fronting on Beacon street, a committee, the members of which claimed they "represented the colored population of the State," conferred with Governor Walsh in the executive chamber, where they were cordially received shortly after 10 o'clock.

Twins Must Live or Mother Stays Knife

While the "Siamese Twins," children of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Gibo, of Holyoke, are still under observation at the Boston Children's Hospital, their anxious mother is weighing in her mind the all-important question of allowing the attending physicians to perform an operation for the purpose of separating them.

Whether the mother finally agrees to such an operation depends upon whether the physicians can guarantee that the lives of both of the twins can be saved.

The little girls are within a month of being three years old. They are joined together by a muscular ligament at the hips. Examination has just disclosed that except for the last two inches of the intestinal canal the children are individually equipped with the normal organs of any human being.

The severance of this ligament now appears to be a simple matter. The operation to provide the needed portion of canal is a comparatively easy one today. The whole proposition, in fact, is now regarded as feasible by the physicians in charge of the case. And it is understood that a physician has been secured to perform the operation if the mother's awaited consent is granted.

'Drowned Woman' Is Found to Be Living

The police of the Back Bay station have begun a new investigation to establish the identity of a body taken from the Muddy river at Audubon road on Feb. 6, and subsequently declared to be that of Miss Harriet Young, as it has been learned that Miss Young is alive and well and is rooming at No. 437 Massachusetts avenue. The strange case of mistaken identity, according to the police, grew out of the fact that Miss Young caused her friends some anxiety by disappearing Oct. 19, leaving much of her clothing in her room at No. 16 Huntington avenue.

THOUSANDS SEE MARATHON RACE

Sixty-four of the best long-distance runners in the United States and Canada started at noon today on the big annual Marathon race from Ashland to the Boston Athletic Association club house on Exeter street. The weather and the roads were perfect. Officials declared that good if not record time would be made. The record for the 25 miles is 2 hours, 21 minutes and 13 1-5 seconds, held by Michael J. Ryan of the Irish American A. C., New York, made in 1912.

The first runner to reach South Framingham was A. P. Merchant of the Winona A. C., Everett, his time from Ashland being 22 minutes and 37 seconds, 19 seconds slower than Ryan, the record holder, made at the same mark.

LEADERS ARE BUNCHED.

The runners were, as usual, well bunched at South Framingham. Merchant being quickly followed by Hugh Honohan of the New York A. C., Charles Pores of the Millrose A. C., New York; Clifton Horne, Dorchester A. A.; John M. Mullen, Dorchester Club; Arthur V. Roth, Dorchester Club; Joe Silva, Chelsea; Nick Gianokopulos, Millrose A. A., New York; Sidney H. Hatch, Illinois A. C., Chicago; Frank Zuna, I. A. A., New York, and Bill Kennedy, Illinois A. C., Chicago, in the order named.

At Wellesley, Honohan of New York A. C. was leading. His time for this distance was 1 hour 2 minutes 57 seconds.

This time was slowed than that made by any of the winners up to this point since 1901.

MERCHANT DROPS BACK.

Charles Pores was second at Wellesley. Joe Silva of Chelsea was third, Gianokopulos fourth, Kennedy of Chicago fifth, Merchant, who led at South Framingham, sixth; Hatch of Chicago seventh; Moinerney of the Shannahan, C. C., Philadelphia, a new comer, had climbed to the eighth position; Horne of the Dorchester Club was ninth, John F. Mullen of Dorchester Club was in tenth position.

The three Canadian runners were picked out by the crowd as they started off, Jamelson, Fabre and Bell, for they are considered as possible tinners. Cliff Horne and Arthur Roth, two local boys, were also given a great cheer for most of the spectators wanted to see a local boy win first honors and wished to encourage them.

The roads from the starting line to Ashland square, a distance of one mile, is narrow and with the many automobiles following the race the runners had a difficult time in picking their way. For the first mile all the runners were bunched, about 200 yards separating the first man from the last.

Once a year the little old town of Ashland is a busy place and today was the day.

The natives of the town were up bright and early and greeted the runners, attendants, managers, newspaper men and others interested in the grind when they arrived on the special train from Boston at 9 o'clock.

AUSTRIAN ENVOY'S FAMILY QUIT ROME

LONDON, April 19.—A Copenhagen dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company says that it is reported from Vienna that war between Austria and Italy is regarded as inevitable in the near future. The staff of the Italian embassy in Vienna is preparing to leave.

By C. F. BERTELLI.
Personal Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, April 19.—Baron von Macchio, Austrian ambassador to Italy, has sent his family and the archives of the embassy from Rome to Vienna, according to a dispatch from the Italian capital today. This and other developments lead to the conclusion that Italy is on the brink of war. While reports of a clash between Italian and Austrian troops at the frontier are unconfirmed, it is believed war may come from just such an incident.

The Italian cabinet ministers are holding daily conferences. Prince von Buelow's negotiations for Austrian concessions to Italy are reported to have been broken off.

The dispatch announcing the departure of the Austrian ambassador's family from Rome states that Baron von Macchio is remaining with only one servant and the embassy's chancellor.

The Petit Parisian quotes a prominent statesman of Roumania as saying:

"Italy will fight with the allies. So will Roumania. We shall enter the war simultaneously with Italy. We are negotiating the final details of our agreement with Italy and awaiting her final military preparations. I expect action to begin early in May."

STRAND PITCHES BRAVES TO A WIN

FENWAY PARK, April 19—With Paul Strand, the left-handed phenomenon, in the box, the Braves walked away with the morning game at Fenway Park, defeating the Brooklyns 7 to 2.

Oppose to Strand was "Wheezer" Dell, six feet four inches, who hails from the Pacific Coast. Mr. Dell passed the first man up in the opening inning, hit the next man and was then touched up for two singles and a three-bagger which yielded four runs.

He got by until the fifth, when a pass and two-baggers by Connolly and Schmidt, followed by Smith's

NEW YORK, April 19.—One thousand striking school children of public school No. 20, urged on by 600 men and women, made a hostile demonstration today against the removal of Principal William S. Maxson. On the 1,200 pupils, only 200 reported in their class rooms.

150,000 BRITISH TAKE THE PLEDGE

By JOHN C. FOSTER.
Personal Correspondent of the International News Service.

LONDON, April 19.—More than 150,000 persons in England and Scotland have now taken a pledge to abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors until the end of the war, according to leaders of the temperance movement today. It was stated that impetus had been given to the movement by the activity of the churches.

Ten thousand Protestant churches throughout England observed Sunday as "King's Pledge Sunday." The largest meeting was held in central London, where more than 2,500 persons renounced liquor.

Supreme Court Dismisses Leo Frank's Appeal

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The Supreme Court of the United States today dismissed the appeal of Leo M. Frank of Atlanta, Ga., convicted of the murder of Mary Phagan, from the decision of the United States District Court of Georgia, denying him a writ of habeas corpus.

The court refused to take Frank out of the jurisdiction of the courts of Georgia, which are now free to carry out the death sentence imposed upon him for the murder of the factory girl.

The court held that the absence of Frank from the court room when the jury brought in the verdict of guilty, and also the alleged mob influence in Atlanta at the time of the trial, could not be construed as nullifying the judgment of guilty.

The decision seems to indicate that Frank has exhausted every legal device to prevent hanging. The decision was by a divided court.

Justice Pitney delivered the opinion of the court. Justice Holmes delivered a dissenting opinion, in which Justice Hughes concurred.

Garros, Famous French Aviator, Taken Prisoner

By International News Service.

BERLIN, April 19 (by wireless).—Roland Garros, the famous aviator, who won a lieutenancy in the French army soon after the war began by heroic feats against German airmen, has been made prisoner by the Germans. It was officially announced today that Garros was captured at Ingelmunster, a town of Flanders, about eighteen miles north of Lille. He was making a raid behind the German lines when he was brought down.

ROOSEVELT SUIT GETS UNDER WAY

By L. V. B. RUCKER,
Personal Correspondent of the International News Service.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 19.—With the small courtroom crowded to capacity and the corridors filled with people, mostly women, anxious to secure admission, the $50,000 libel suit of William Barnes, former New York State Republican chairman, against Colonel Theodore Roosevelt came to trial at 10:10 o'clock today before Justice William S. Andrews in Part 1 of the Supreme Court of Onondaga County.

Colonel Roosevelt, accompanied by Horace Wilkinson, Progressive State chairman, and John D. Bowers, his chief counsel, arrived at the courthouse half an hour before time for court to open.

Mr. Barnes came in five minutes later with his chief counsel, William M. Ivins. He made no recognition to Mr. Roosevelt.

James L. Crego, first talesman examined, was questioned by William Barnum of local counsel for Barnes.

"Are you acquainted with the merits of this law suit?" was Barnum's first shot.

"I know Barnes is suing Roosevelt or Roosevelt is suing Barnes" was the answer, "but I'm not sure of which."

"This is an action for published libel," said the attorney. "Have you any opinion?"

Crego had none, nor did he know any of the principals or their counsel. He could obey the instructions of the court.

"Would you be able to try this case as an ordinary law suit?

"I could."

"And if they told you this was a political suit, would it affect your verdict?"

"It would not."

"Do you think that a political leader can be libelled the same as an ordinary individual?"

Justice Andrews—"That is not necessary at this time, Mr. Barnum."

TALESMEN PASS MUSTER.

Crego, a middle aged man with thick eyeglasses took his quizzing with great seriousness.

"Would the fact," asked Barnum, "that the defendant in this case has been Governor of this State and President of the United States affect your judgment in this case?"

"It would not."

Barnum then passed on to Irving J. Mills, a woodworker of Syracuse, planning to examine all the twelve men in line for box before challenging any. Mills' examination was about the same as that of Crego.

Ernest Wagner, a Republican butcher of Syracuse, was the third talesman questioned. He knew neither principals nor counsel and knew nothing about the case until the newspapers told him about the trial in the last few days.

"Do you know any reason why you should not sit as a juror on this case?"

"I'd just a lief not sit," Wagner said.

"Because of business or bias?" was asked.

"Butcher business," said Wagner.

George T. Spencer and Philip Muth were the fourth and fifth men examined. They had no opinion and would try Colonel Roosevelt for published libel just as if he never had been Governor and President.

W. Pierce, clerk, got by and Warren D. Somers was called. He knew Oliver D. Burden of counsel for Roosevelt.

POLITICS APPEARS EARLY.

"Were you interested in any of the many political campaigns of this defendant?"

Mr. Burden objected to "many." Justice Andrews ordered the word stricken out and Barnum withdrew it. The squabble drew a laugh from everybody in the room, except the colonel.

He sent, serious and taciturn, his face showing no emotion. Colonel Roosevelt had appeared preoccupied and serious minded ever since he arrived.

Barnes, wearing a tan waistcoat, swung his chair around facing the colonel within the rail, but Roosevelt never took his eyes from the jury box.

Baron Reuter a Suicide from Grief for Wife

LONDON, April 19.—Baron Augusto Julius Clement Herbert Reuter, managing director of the Reuter Telegram Company, the great European news agency, committed suicide shooting himself at his home. He was sixty-three years old.

Grief over the death of his wife, who had not yet been buried, is believed to have been the cause of the Baron's suicide.

Just before he killed himself the Baron had set before the coffin of his dead wife for two hours weeping bitterly. Late in the afternoon a servant upon entering a Summer house in the garden found the nobleman dead, a bullet hole in his temple and a revolver clutched in his hand.

Upon a table was a letter addressed to "The spirit of my dear, dead wife." The inquest will be held tomorrow.

CLAIM AUSTRIAN LOSS OF 180,000

By FRANCIS LAVELLE MURRAY.
Personal Correspondent of the International News Service.

PETROGRAD, April 19.—With the first phase of the Russian campaign in the Carpathians ended by weather conditions, the Czar's troops are strengthening the positions they have won in the mountain ranges and opening new operations to clear the Austro-German forces from Buko. wina and Eastern Galicia.

The war office submits that the Austro-Germans lost 180,000 men in the Carpathian battles.

As soon as normal weather conditions return, the main effort, the invasion of Hungary, will be resumed.

Minor successes for the Russians about Rostoki, forty miles southwest of Czernowitz, are already reported. This shows that the Russians have again crossed the Dneister river and are making a drive toward Jablonica pass, through which leads a railroad to Maramarossziget.

German and Austrian claims that the Russians lost 500,000 men in the Carpathian campaign and were defeated were emphatically denied at the war office today.

"On the contrary," it was stated, "our operations in the Carpathians were a complete success. We have taken all the positions attacked, despite the terrible difficulties imposed by flooded streams and muddy roads.

"The nature of the fighting and the fact that the Russians were on the offensive made their losses severe, but those of the enemy were much heavier. The first incomplete reports from our commanders show that we have taken at least 70,000 prisoners during the fighting of the last month. This total probably will be increased to 100,000 when the exact results are known.

"It is estimated that the Austro-German forces lost in killed and wounded fully 65,000 men. Their total casualties, including the prisoners, were probably four and a half army corps, or 180,000 men.

"The enemy's claims that we needlessly sacrificed our troops and lost 500,000 men are ridiculous and absolutely false. The Austro-German forces that advanced eastward from the Dunajec river last week have been halted at the Biala.

"This river is in flood, and neither Teutons nor Russians will be able to cross it until the water subsides."

BOMBS DROPPED ON BELFORT; FRENCH PUSH ON TOWARD RHINE

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK.
Personal Correspondent International News Service.

PARIS, April 19.—German aeroplanes have bombarded the great French fortress of Belfort, it was officially announced here today, in a communique from the war office. Bombs dropped from the aeroplanes set fire to two hangars and caused other damage, but not of a serious nature.

A communique also reports further successes in the drive of the French troops toward the Rhine river, they taking a series of important heights, two cannon and two machine guns.

The British troops have also assumed the offensive again, it is announced. They have captured German trenches.

HEAVY LOSSES FOR BRITISH IN FLANDERS, BERLIN REPORTS

By FREDERICK WERNER.
Personal Correspondent of the International News Service.

BERLIN, April 19.—British attacks on the German positions along the railroads between Ypres and Comines in Flanders, resulted in heavy losses to the assailing forces, according to today's official report from the German general staff. It also states that the British troops have been driven from a small position which they had taken from the Germans south of Ypres.

The French and English reports of victories in the western theatre of war are declared by the German general staff to be "inventions." The official report of Berlin follows:

"South of Ypres the English were ejected yesterday from a small German position which they still occupied. English attacks along the Ypres-Comines Railroad broke down with very heavy losses.

"Between the Meuse and Moselle there were artillery duels. A French attack against our position of Combres and in the Vosges failed.

"On the east front the situation is unchanged.

"French and English reports about victories on the west front are all inventions. The report from German headquarters are sufficient proof of this."

BRITISH AWAIT SEA-AIR ATTACK

By HERBERT TEMPLE.
Personal Correspondent International News Service.

LONDON, April 19.—Germany's master stroke against England, a combined attack by sea and air, is believed to be imminent.

According to advices received here today, the German Admiralty is sending against the British coast every available submarine with the intention of crippling the British fleet if possible, planning to follow this attack with another by the most powerful battleships and cruisers, with Zeppelins and seaplanes co-operating by assailing the coast fortifications and inland towns.

An Amsterdam dispatch states that five German torpedo boats were sighted north of Hinder lightship by the captain of a London steamer on Sunday, while a Newcastle vessel sighted several torpedo boats and four submarines twenty-five miles northwest of Ymuiden steaming west.

Trawlers just arrived in Holland coast towns report that a flotilla of small warships, believed to be German, is cruising in the North Sea.

The force of special constables called to duty following the Zeppelin raid near London is still held in readiness for emergencies. A heavy fog rested over the Channel and North Sea today, and it was thought possible that the German flotilla might take advantage of this.

Two new Zeppelins are reported to have arrived at Brussels, while German aeroplanes formerly at Brussels that have been transferred to Antwerp.

Persian Gulf Move by Turks Repulsed

By International News Service.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 19.—Turkish efforts to reach the Persian gulf have received a setback, it was officially admitted here today. The War Office issued a statement that the arrival of British reinforcements had forced the Ottoman troops to retire.

"Our advance guards," says the statement, "made successful attacks in the Basra district near Sharlo and Alberjiyeh. Our troops have left the enemy's fortified positions, but retired upon the arrival of British reinforcements."

A Salonika dispatch states that the British army is making plans to fortify islands of Tenedos and Lemnos, and it is believed the allies will land troops on Mytilene.

Reserve Decision on Thaw Habeas Corpus

NEW YORK, April 19.—Supreme Court Justice Hendricks today reserved decision until Thursday after hearing arguments on Harry Thaw's habeas corpus writ which asked that Thaw be released from custody. It was given a trial by a jury on the question of his mental status. John B. Stanchfield, attorney for Thaw, argued at length to show that Thaw was not insane.

British Trawler Sunk by Submarine

By International News Service.

HULL, England, April 19.—The British trawler Vanilla was torpedoed and sunk in the North Sea by a German submarine on Sunday. The trawler Fermo tried to save the Vanilla's crew, but was driven off by the German boat.

NEW MOVE FOR PEACE REPORTED

ROME, April 19.—The first great peace conference of the war has just been concluded here. How much was accomplished, if anything, cannot now be stated; such elaborate measures to preserve secrecy have been adopted that it is doubtful even if this letter will get through.

It is known that letters are still passing between the Pope and the Emperor Franz Josef, and it is believed they relate to the peace negotiations. One of three communications was received in the last day or two, being brought here by special messenger, who took back an autograph reply from the Pope.

The great significant fact is that Sir Edward Grey, the British Secretary, came to Rome to take part in this peace conference, arriving here on April 6; that General Pau, the distinguished French commander, arrived here April 8 to attend the meeting on behalf of France, and that while here the two representatives of the allies met three prominent Austro-Hungarian statesmen and an important delegation from Russia.

It is public knowledge that at this time two very prominent Turks, Cemso Effendi and Mithat Chacry Bey, made it convenient to be here. These Turkish leaders took a prominent part in the preliminary negotiations for peace in the Turko-Italian war, although they deny publicly that they are now here on such business, the impression is strong that the sudden gathering of world-famous diplomats cannot be explained in any other way than as a preliminary discussion looking to a separate peace for Austria.

As the Russian advance over the Carpathian gathers momentum Austrian statesmen are coming more and more to realize the hopelessness of the position of the dual monarchy, and more and more inclined to make the terms they can while it is still possible to make terms.

That Sir Edward Grey should come here secretly indicates that the allies are not averse to the discussion of plans for a separate Austrian peace.

It is explained by a well known Hungarian diplomat that while it is perfectly true that neither official Austria nor official Hungary has considered the possibility of peace without including Germany, as has been stated officially several times, notably in the last few days by Count Julious Andrassy, son of the famous Foreign Minister, it is also true that in the dual monarchy official Austria has not the final word; that the people are demanding peace and that what is denied today is likely to be admitted tomorrow.

Swoboda Ship-Firing - Charge Collapses

By International News Service.

PARIS, April 19.—The accusation that Raymond Swoboda attempted to destroy the liner La Touraine has collapsed, the Journal announces, and Captain Bouchardon, who is conducting the military inquiry, is now investigating the charge of espionage. It is possible that Swoboda will never be brought to trial.

1300 'HIT TRAIL' ON SUNDAY'S PLEA

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 19.—Billy Sunday came to this city from Paterson, N. J., today to spend his day of rest. His program of recreation included an address at a ministerial meeting in the Calvary Baptist Church and a possible visit to the Polo Grounds this afternoon to see the Giants play.

Mr. Sunday is highly pleased with the result of his labors in Paterson, 1,666 having hit the sawdust trail at the services on Sunday.

In his sermon "For men only" Mr. Sunday said, in part: "There are boys of twelve today who know more about vice than Methusaleh did at 965. While a boy's old man is scratching gravel to make one lap on the track, his son hits the grit and gets around it twelve times. No one tells you you cannot be virtuous and enjoy good health. A brand him as a low, inhumous, black-hearted liar."

The collections yesterday broke the record for the Paterson campaign, amounting to more than $2,500 and bringing the grand total to date above $15,000.

The men's meeting was the banner meeting of the revival. The subject of Sunday's discourse was "When Chickens Come Home to Roost." Fully 12,000 men managed to get within sound of his voice, the overflow standing out of sight under the choir platform and filling the aisles.

The main hall had doors open, the low tar roof and wooden sides of the barn-like structure and the atmosphere were stifling. But the vast crowd, silk-hatted and plain-capped, rubbing elbows, remained until the last word was spoken.

They took off their coats and sat in their shirtsleeves on the floor, benches or in the sawdust while Sunday, collarless, his shirtsleeves rolled up and his shirt wringing wet with perspiration, hammered home his arguments in favor of decent living.

"Ma" Sunday led a meeting yesterday at the Regent Theatre, Paterson, for women only. The theatre, with 2,500 capacity, was packed. The collection was $143.33 and 227 women "hit the trail."

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont and Mrs. Herman Oelrichs were at one of the Sunday gatherings. Both said they were deeply impressed by the evangelist's appeal.

In the course of his address, Mr. Sunday said:

"There are three things which will ruin any town and give it a bad name: Open license, open stores on the sabbath and a dirty causing gang of blackleggs on the side. No man lives unto himself alone. Then why in God's name is not it anybody's business if there is an immoral life. If you were the only streets, man in Paterson you could build a slaughter house in your front yard, but you cannot build it because there are 129,999 other persons to be considered.

"The law step in and says you shall not jeopardize the health of the community. You have to obey the law or go to jail. God's law says you must not endanger the moral health of your neighbors. You have to obey that law or go to hell.

"The saloons are filled with the violators of God's law and with unfortunate victims who, through the sins of their fathers have been cursed into misery before they were born.

"If I heard an old weazel-eyed, hog-jowled, rum-soaked, pug-nut beating his wife and children he would told me I was interfering with his personal liberty when I went into his house would I apologize? Not upon my life. I'd knock seven kinds of pork out of him.

"Personal liberty is not personal license. I have not yet exercise personal liberty if it infringes on the liberty of others. Personal liberty is the liberty of a burglar or other criminal or a wolf that wants to stay in a chickenfold or a weazel in a hencoop.

Governor Signs Cafe Stall Bill

Governor Walsh today appended his signature to the bill to prohibit enclosed stalls and booths in restaurants and cafes. The new law will become effective July 1.

Under its terms it will be unlawful for a cafe, restaurant or saloon, or other places where food and liquor are sold to be conducted upon the premises, to permit the use of booths, stalls or "enclosures of any description whatever which are so closed by curtains, screens or other devices that the persons within cannot be plainly seen by other persons in the cafe, restaurant or saloon."

This is one of the so-called "white slave" bills, based on the special investigation and report of the Massachusetts White Slave Commission. The limit penalty is a $500 fine or imprisonment for two months.

FOR A BAD COUGH

Here is a fine old-fashioned recipe for coughs, colds or catarrh trouble that is absolutely unequaled. Get from your druggist 1 oz. of Parmint (Double strength) and add to it ¾ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar. Take one tablespoonful 4 times a day.

No need to sicken your whole body with a cough. Clogged nostrils will open, air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has a stubborn cough, hard cold or catarrh in any form should give this prescription a trial.

MRS. WM. F. M'COMBS, heiress bride, whose reported separation from her husband is denied by the latter.

NEW YORK, April 19.—Denial that he and his wife have separated or contemplated divorce was made by William F. McCombs, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, today.

"Any statement of separation of intended divorce is entire news to me," said Mr. McCombs. "There is no truth to this report, but I don't wish to dignify it with a formal denial."

Is Matrimony Only a Step to Insanity?

Is matrimony but a step in the direction of insanity?

This inference, at least, may be drawn from what Dr. Thaddeus E. V. Scribner says in the annual report of the Worcester State Hospital.

In reviewing the cases admitted to the institution last year, Dr. Shribner says:

"As would be expected, laborers, housewives, operatives and domestics furnished the greater numbers and in the order given.

He makes no further comment. But the fact is apparent that housewives were second in the list and were exceeded only by laborers, who, numerically, are many times greater in the State.

And the doctor used those significant words. "As may be expected," housewives are second in the list.

State Treasurer Cox who have perused the report are unable to explain whether the statement is an indictment of matrimony in itself or of the married man.

It appears from his report that 757 patients were admitted to the institution last year, with a rapidly decreasing rate of foreign-born patients.

D. A. R. CONGRESS BEGINS SESSIONS

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 19. — The twenty-fourth annual congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution was opened today in Memorial Continental Hall with one of the largest assemblages of delegates ever gathered. Mrs. William Cumming Story, the president general, called the congress to order.

The opening of the congress was the first step in a lively contest over the officers, which will reach its climax in the election on Wednesday. The supporters of Mrs. George T. Guernsey of Independence, Kas., say they have enough votes to elect her president general to succeed Mrs. Story, while the latter's followers are equally confident.

President Wilson delivered an address of welcome following Mrs. annual address. Ambassador Jusserand of France, John Hays Hammond, the mining engineer, Director John Barrett of the Pan-American Union and other distinguished men also were on today's program.

List Special Prizes in Workhorse Event

Among the special prizes to be offered at the Memorial Day parade of the Work Horse Relief Association are the following: A gold medal in the old horse class by the M. S. P. C. A.; a silver medal in the veteran driver class by the American Humane Education Association, three $5 prizes in the old horse class, by Mrs. Jacob Hittinger of Belmont; a silver cup in the express class, by Mrs. P. J. Talbot of Atlantic, and the Lawrence gold medal for the best four-horse team, the horses to be cared for by the driver.

Million Profit in MorganPorcelains

PARIS, April 19.—There is good authority for saying J. Pierpont Morgan's profit on the sale of his porcelain collection was $1,000,000. The sale of all the Morgan collections, which is thought to be certain, meets with mixed feelings among dealers. While it will paralyze their business for a time, the feeling is that in the end it will prove that the purchase of antique objects of art is as sound an investment as stocks.

Music Drawn Out by Magnet's Force

PARIS, April 19.—The Figaro announces that the electric magnet, which is used to a very great extent in war work, both in the manufacturing of munitions and the extraction of missiles, has been utilized by Engineer Reviers to draw sustained, luminous, violin-like tones from stringed instruments, such as the piano, violin and harp.

Per Capita Share in State Debt $23.36

In the annual report of the State Treasurer the net debt of the State is shown to be $64,700,000. The population of the State is about 3,625,- 000. By the simple process of division the per capita debt is $23.36.

Actually the total debt is $122,965,- 000, but against that debt the State has $54,300,000 in its sinking fund.

Justice Burr Dead.

NEW YORK, April 19.—Justice Joseph A. Burr of the Appellate division of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, died early today following an operation for intestinal trouble. Justice Burr was a Yale graduate, and had been on the Supreme Court Bench since 1897.

U. S. Saves Life of Arthur Tappan

WASHINGTON, April 19—Consul General Silliman at Vera Cruz today reported to President Wilson that Arthur Tappan, of New York, under sentence of death in Yucatan, has been granted a respite as a result of Washington intervention. It is expected his life will be saved. Consul Silliman stated the Mexican authorities have agreed to grant a new trial under a law that does not provide the death penalty for the offense with which he is charged. The exact nature of the offence is not known here.

Tuesday Is Double Legal Stamp Day — A Day of Double Importance

Our advertising today is a veritable feast for Legal Stamp collectors. Double stamps fill a book in half the time usually required. Our advertising today is not as voluminous as we usually publish in the Sunday papers for Monday's selling. But fully twice as many bargains are advertised as usual, owing to the fact that items are set in small type and no illustrations are used.

If you have any heavy purchases to make in wearing apparel or home furnishings, we strongly advise you to make them tomorrow and get double stamps in addition to the low prices advertised — account of Monday being a holiday.

WHITES JOIN COLORED PEOPLE'S PROTEST AGAINST PHOTO-PLAY

As each member of the committee passed through a pathway in the centre of the crowd they were cheered. Demonstrations were confined to those outbursts and singing. The crowd was orderly and quietly awaited the outcome.

INTENSE IN PURPOSE.

The serious expressions of those who made up the throng and their subdued conversations showed the intensity of purpose that had prompted them to march on the Capitol.

While they waited and cheered and sang "Onward Christian Soldiers" with a chorus of melody heard blocks away, Governor Walsh held a conference with Police Commissioner Stephen O'Meara, Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley, Deputy Chief George C. Neal of the State Police and a sub-committee of distinguished colored representatives made up of former Assistant United States District Attorney William H. Lewis, Butler R. Wilson, a leading attorney, and Henry C. Robbins, a court stenographer. A messenger-general Attwill was sent for, but could not be located.

Before entering the Executive Chamber, Acting Chief Neal of the State Police said:

"I have witnessed an exhibition of 'The Birth of a Nation.' It is my opinion that the films can properly be interpreted as a violation of the law, so far as the scenes depicting outrages on white women are concerned."

COMMITTEE CHOSEN ON STEPS.

The committee of fifty that waited on Governor Walsh were selected at random from the group on the steps by W. Monroe Trotter, editor of the Guardian, who was one of the eleven arrested at the demonstration at the Tremont Theatre, Saturday night, which assumed the aspect of a race riot.

Pastors of all the colored churches in Boston and a group of prominent white men and women were on the delegation of protest. Among the white delegates were Miss Elizabeth C. Putnam of No. 104 Marlboro street; Mrs. Anna Phillips Williams, of No. 505 Beacon street, niece of Wendell Phillips, the abolitionist; Miss A. E. Fisher of Boston and Joseph Manning, former Representative from Alabama.

Rev. S. A. Brown of St. Mark's Congregational Church was made chairman. He also enlisted committees members. The colored members were:

Rev. Aaron Puller, pastor of the People's Baptist Church, where the first mass meeting was held last week; Rev. M. A. N. Shaw, pastor of the Twelfth Baptist Church; Editor Trotter; Rev. W. A. Thornton, pastor of the Charles Street A. M. E. Church; Miss Crosswhite, representing the colored women's organizations in Boston; Rev. Dr. Ray W. Swain, pastor of A. M. E. Church.

MOVE MADE AS LAST RESORT.

Members of the committee claimed the films "distorted history and ridiculed and insulted the colored race."

Rev. M. A. N. Shaw, pastor of the Twelfth Baptist Church and a member of today's "Committee of Fifty" said:

"We protested to Governor Walsh that the law had not been properly interpreted and that if rightly construed it gave enough latitude and authority to stop further productions of these pictures.

"We claim the pictures dealing with alleged outrages of white women are grossly slanderous and effective in morals. They purport to be history, but they are not history.

"Today's outpouring followed a big indignation meeting at Faneuil Hall last night when prominent white speakers joined in denouncing the films and conferences which colored committees claimed they had with Mayor Curley without success.

"They declared they were compelled to appeal to Governor Walsh as a last resort.

Governor Walsh arrived at 9:15. The colored delegations began to arrive singly and in groups from all points of the compass an hour earlier. It was hot in the sun, but they stood close. Women and children squatted on the stone steps. They were good-natured, but terribly in earnest. They talked about Saturday night's trouble and the ringing sentiments expounded by the orators last night in the Cradle of Liberty, which was altogether too small to accommodate the crowd that stormed its doors.

CROWD GREW QUICKLY.

The crowd quickly grew. When the first 200 assembled there was only one policeman on the scene, Patrolman Melody of Court square station. Later he was joined by Patrolman John J. Lordan from the Joy street station. They, with John Noonan, a State House messenger, had no difficulty in handling the crowd.

Superintendent Crowley arrived just before 10 o'clock and was promptly admitted to the Governor's private room, where he was joined soon afterward by Acting Chief Neal of the State Police.

At 10:30 a group of colored people on the steps started singing "America." They had gotten part through the first verse when others began to join. The hissing grew into volume and at the end of the first verse the singing was completely drowned out.

SING PATRIOTIC SONG.

Then the same group sang two stanzas of "The Star Spangled Banner," amid hissing. After each refrain, "We'll hang Jeff Davis to a Sour Apple Tree," was started all the colored people joined in and made it vociferously. The crowd then bellowed a parody on the Rev. Thomas Dixon, Jr., the author of the "Clansman," from which the theme of "The Birth of a Nation" was taken. The parody ran:

"We'll hang Thomas Dixon to a sour apple tree,
We'll hang Thomas Dixon to a sour apple tree,
We'll hang Thomas Dixon to a sour apple tree,
As his soul goes marching on."

Rev. S. A. Brown, chairman of the committee, said:

"We desire to protest to Governor Walsh against 'The Birth of the Nation' and to point out that the law is sufficient to prevent further productions of these vile films. The law I speak of is the same law that Mayor Curley referred to when he said his censors were not equipped with sufficient authority to stop the pictures."

Following the demonstration and singing on the State House steps, Governor Walsh announced to the newspapermen at 10:40 that he had sent for Attorney-General Henry C. Attwill and Police Commissioner Stephen O'Meara of Boston.

Why Drag Through Life Wearing Worthless Trusses?

90% of the Suffering and Trouble Ruptured People Go Through Is Caused By Spring and Leg-Strap Trusses

Aren't you sick and tired of wearing trusses for relief? Don't you know they are unsafe in, or which hurt or they scratch? Are you a slave to rupture?

Don't you know that such contraptions will sooner or later fit you with the fits the best of you?

Don't you know they are almost sure to strain you up, so you won't be able to keep the wound open? Be able to make a living?

Aren't you afraid there'll gradually let you get so old soon or later you'll have to face a dangerous operation?

Aren't you willing to make a sixty-day test—without having to ask a cent—and see for yourself that a relief is to get rid of such misery-causing makeshifts?

No More Belts, Leg-Straps or Springs

We take hold in a way to hold any man's rupture without harmful pressure, without any belts or straps around the body, while not having to wear bothersome

It is the guaranteed rupture holder.

It is in fact an improvement over elastic and spring trusses and so-called "appliances" the same principle as over the first steam engine ever built.

60 Days' Trial to Prove It

We have so much confidence in our new way, what it has done for so many others—that we are willing to make you this offer. Write your case and send it to you for sixty days' trial. Within that time you can make up your mind for yourself just how good it is.

If it doesn't keep your rupture from coming out or from bothering you in any way, then you can send it back and it won't cost you a single cent.

It is the only thing we know of for rupture that you can put on long enough trial to prove what it is worth, because the only thing good enough to stand a long and thorough test.

Book All About It in Free Book

Just send any money. Just write for our free book bound. 20 separate articles on cause—and find out everything you want to know about it. All of this never before put in print.

It shows how other operating is nearly always unable with death and why those who manage to live through it often have to keep on wearing a truss.

It exposes the fakes and humbugs—note you are guard against being fooled and against throwing money away.

And it tells all about our guaranteed rupture holder—the famous Cluthe. Shows how it is made. How it holds by built on lines of nature. How it has brought comfort—ease to thousands of cases that seemed almost hopeless. How it is water-proof and will last for years. How you can get it on 60 days' trial and how little it costs if you keep it.

Explains the care and attention we give you by mail. Shows some of our long experience and through knowledge of rupture, we are confident in most cases we will surely benefit your local truss fitters.

GUARD ACCUSED PEABODY SLAYER

ISHMAIL SOLUVIT, accused of double killing at Peabody.

Ishmail Soluvit, nineteen, accused of a double slaying in Peabody last week, was brought to that town secretly, early today, from Lynn, where he was held for several hours while the police induced a throng of 1,000, gathered outside the police station in Peabody to disperse. Owning to the threatening attitude of Peabody Greeks and Turks all the regular and reserve policemen in the town were called out.

Many women were in the crowd and various threats against Soluvit were made when it was learned he had been taken into custody. The police feared the Greeks would attempt to seize the prisoner to do him violence, or that the Turks might attempt to rescue him.

The crowd remained in the streets until after midnight, when the police were able to spread reports Soluvit would not be brought from Lynn until 10 a. m. This led the crowd to disperse and then word was sent to Lynn to bring Soluvit over.

Soluvit, who was brought to Peabody in an auto, handcuffed, is now in the town police station with a patrolman on guard outside his cell. This guard will be maintained until Soluvit is taken before Trial Justice Fay in the Peabody Police Court tomorrow.

During a five-hour third degree at Lynn, where Soluvit was taken after firing two shots at his captors, he denied any guilt. When shown the photographs of Arthur Pieroulethes and Peter Karambelas, whom he is charged with having slain, the prisoner denied he knew them or had ever seen them.

Woodward President of the State S. A. R.

Frank Ernest Woodward of Wellesley Hill, was today elected president of the Massachusetts Society of the Sons of the American Revolution at their twenty-sixth annual meeting held in the Old South Meeting House. More than 200 members were present. Immediately after the election of officers twenty-one members were appointed delegates to the Congress of the National Society which is to convene at Portland, Ore., on July 19 and 20. The following other officers were elected:

Vice-presidents, Vernon Ashley Field of Wellaston; Charles Francis Read of Brookline, and Webster Bruce of Lynn.

If rioting should result I am absolutely sure that I could order in act as commander-in-chief of Massachusetts military. But under existing conditions I am still doubtful as to my authority."

Funeral of Boy Who Was Shot.

The funeral of Daniel Sullivan, the fourteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Sullivan of No. 14 Oregon street, Roxbury, who was killed by accidental discharge of a pistol Friday evening, was held today. High mass of requiem was celebrated at its Mission Church at 9 a. m.

MAYOR ON COST OF CARING FOR ANNEX

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Sir—The editorial appearing in the edition of your paper of April 15 directing attention to the fact that a vacuum cleaner is stored in the basement of the City Hall Annex and has never been used by the superintendent of public buildings merits explanation.

This particular vacuum cleaning system was installed under the administration of my predecessor and prior to its installation a protest was filed by an authority on vacuum cleaning systems with the administration then in power to the effect that the system which was finally installed would certainly fail in operation, and such has proven the case.

The cost of cleaning the Annex, your article states, is greater than the cost of cleaning the Courthouse. In answer thereto, I would state that the wage paid to the women who scrub the floors in the City Hall Annex is $3 per week, or $1.50 per day, while the wage paid to women employed at cleaning in the Courthouse is $5 per week, or $1.33 per day.

These women, a majority of whom are widows with children depending upon them for support, were in the employ of the city when I assumed the office of mayor, and so long as these deserving persons continue to do their work in a satisfactory manner it is not my purpose to remove them, as, in my opinion, it is far better that these women be afforded an opportunity to honestly and honorably earn a livelihood for themselves and their children rather than to run the risk of making the women the objects of charity and their children State wards.

What suffering humanity needs today is more work and less charity.

Respectfully,
JAMES M. CURLEY
Mayor.

Recital by Kreisler Fills Symphony Hall

Fritz Kreisler gave the fifth and last of his Boston concerts in Symphony Hall yesterday afternoon. As at all previous recitals, the hall was completely filled, and the audience was loath to let him go, even after he had played for more than two hours. His program, as usual, was admirably chosen to display his amazing talent and versatility. Kreisler has been the great sensation of the musical season. Always a favorite, his experience as an officer in the Austrian army, who fell wounded at the head of his company fighting a Cossack charge, have made him a popular hero and all over the country he has been greeted with crowded houses all the time.

Live Bird in Gauze Cage on 'Toodles' Hat

NEW YORK, April 19.—Bess Ryan, who first became famous as Fashion in "Experience" and later because she sued Harry Mansfield of Boston for $50,000 for alleged breach of promise, startled Fifth avenue when she appeared with a real live bird in a cage of gauze which formed part of her hat.

The bird sang and a large number of people who followed her agreed that it was very fetching. Even the bird seemed to enjoy it.

Funeral of Police Chief of Weymouth

The funeral of Chief of Police Patrick Butler of Weymouth, who was killed by an automobile driven by Joseph E. L. Miller Thursday night, was held today at the home of Chief Butler on Pleasant street, East Weymouth. In the procession were uniformed members of the police of Hingham, Cohasset, Holbrook, Randolph, Milton and Quincy. A requiem high mass was celebrated at the Church of the Immaculate Conception at East Weymouth.

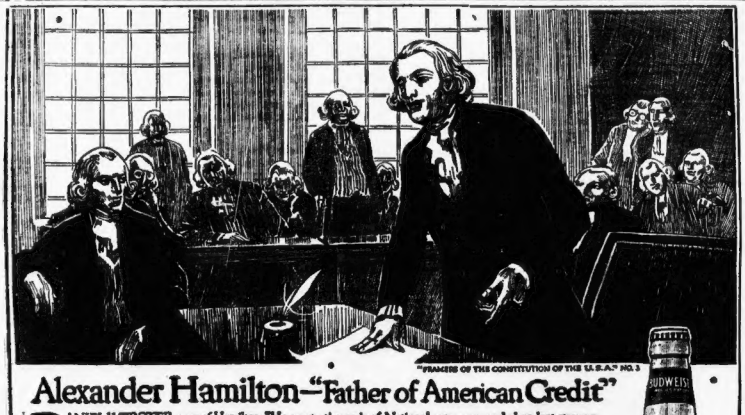
"FRAMERS OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE U. S. A." NO. 3



Alexander Hamilton—"Father of American Credit"

DANIEL WEBSTER says of Hamilton: "He smote the rock of National resources and abundant streams of revenue gushed forth; he touched the dead corpse of public credit and it sprung upon its feet." No man did more to build the Constitution of the United States than did Hamilton. He took a prominent part in every debate, and worked indefatigably on all the important committees. His genius, individuality and daring foresight are indelibly stamped upon every clause of our National Law—the law under which Americans are guaranteed for all time Religious, Commercial and Personal Liberty. During Hamilton's lifetime he used his great influence to encourage and protect the brewing industry. Among all the Fathers of the Republic none knew better than he that honestly-brewed barley-malt beers make for true temperance. This American Colossus, who was second only to Washington in the service rendered to his country, drank good beer all his days. We know of no one who has yet dared declare that it injured him in any way. Under the tenets of the Constitution, which Hamilton did so much to make a fact, Anheuser-Busch 58 years ago launched their great institution. During these years they have honestly brewed honest beers. To-day 7500 people are daily required to meet the public demand. Their world-famed brand BUDWEISER because of its quality, purity, mildness and exquisite flavor, exceeds the sale of any other beer by millions of bottles.

Visitors to St. Louis are courteously invited to inspect our plant—covers 142 acres.

NEW WONDERS IN ELAINE FILMS

THE second episode of the new Exploits of Elaine is called "The Cryptic Ring," which is only a more learned way of saying "The Ring That Held a Secret."

Wu Fang, the serpent-like Chinaman, who is determined to secure the seven million dollars which the villainous Perry Benner, of the Clutching Hand, had misappropriated from the estate of the murdered Taylor Dodge, is in possession of this ring. He loses it. It passes into the hands and upon the dainty finger of Elaine Dodge. Learning which the so well named Wu Fang desires the ring so much that he plans the murder of the fair-haired girl, she seems to have been born to perilous adventure.

Wu Fang might have prospered more greatly in his career of villainy had he not left a trail of the venom of his previous craft and crime behind him. He had been responsible for the murder of the leader of one of the tongs (bands) of his countrymen, and they, in return, planned to murder him.

The pictures show him gloating in his apartment, rich as the dreams of the Orient, over the gold he secured from Perry Benner's hiding place, for it was in the old house now occupied by Elaine's nurse, but once owned by Bennett. Yet though he believes himself to be hidden by the rich hangings of his room from every mortal eye, he reckons without his spying servant, who is a member of the tong that has been deprived of a leader and that has sworn vengeance upon Wu Fang.

The servant, peeping at the master while engaged in counting his evilly secured hoard, hurries away to report what he has seen. A gang of Chinamen await the master plotter as he walks down the street and fall upon him with both craft and fury.

The fury is manifested by the bruises upon him, the craft by the fact that when Wu Fang recovers from his swoon, after the police have rescued him, his bag of gold is missing.

Wu Fang, knowing the cleverness of the famous detective, Craig Kennedy, decided to call upon him and ask his aid in recovering the lost gold. While in the laboratory, whence so many brilliant ideas and meteoric devices issued, Wu Fang, being entertained in his waiting by Walter Jameson, meets Miss Dodge, who enters escorted by the detective.

He greets her with extravagant courtesy, tinged by the subtle reserve of the East. As the girl sits beside Kennedy's desk her hand, extended on the desk, displays a curious ring. It attracts hungrily at it. His yellow hands clench, as though they would clasp about her round, white throat. But with the eyes of the detective and his young friend, Jameson, upon him, Wu Fang's murderous movement changes to another deep salaam of the East.

That Elaine had that afternoon, while purchasing perfumes for an Oriental reception, seen and fancied the curious ring and that her fiance, Craig Kennedy, had presented it to her, Wu Fang did not know. He learned that there would be a reception, and he eagerly offered to entertain his guests with his Eastern magic.

He showed her specimens of his juggling by which an object that lay in the palm of his hand vanished into the full folds of his gown and then reappeared in his hand. Eagerly she accepted his offer.

During the reception Walter Jameson brings her an ice. That on the way the magician has fluttered his fan about it caused it to disappear and then reappear Jameson forgot to tell. Kennedy, arriving at the same time with a glass of punch, jocosely waved Jameson aside and offers the punch to his sweetheart. Miss Dodge accepted her sweetheart's offering.

A moment later the detective tasting the ice, looks amazed. The next he has fallen to the floor as one stunned. In the sand with which the floor is covered he feebly writes "Digitalin." His alert mind had recognized his symptoms as those of aconite poison, and he was writing the name of the antidote.

By means of the digitalin he recovers. The next day in pursuing Wu Fang to an hotel, where the Chinaman had lured Miss Dodge and her aunt with a false tale that Kennedy is dying. There is a hot pursuit across the roofs, the Chinaman escaping while the detective sustains a terrible fall from a rope, which the fleeing Chinaman had cut with a hatchet hidden beneath his loose garment.

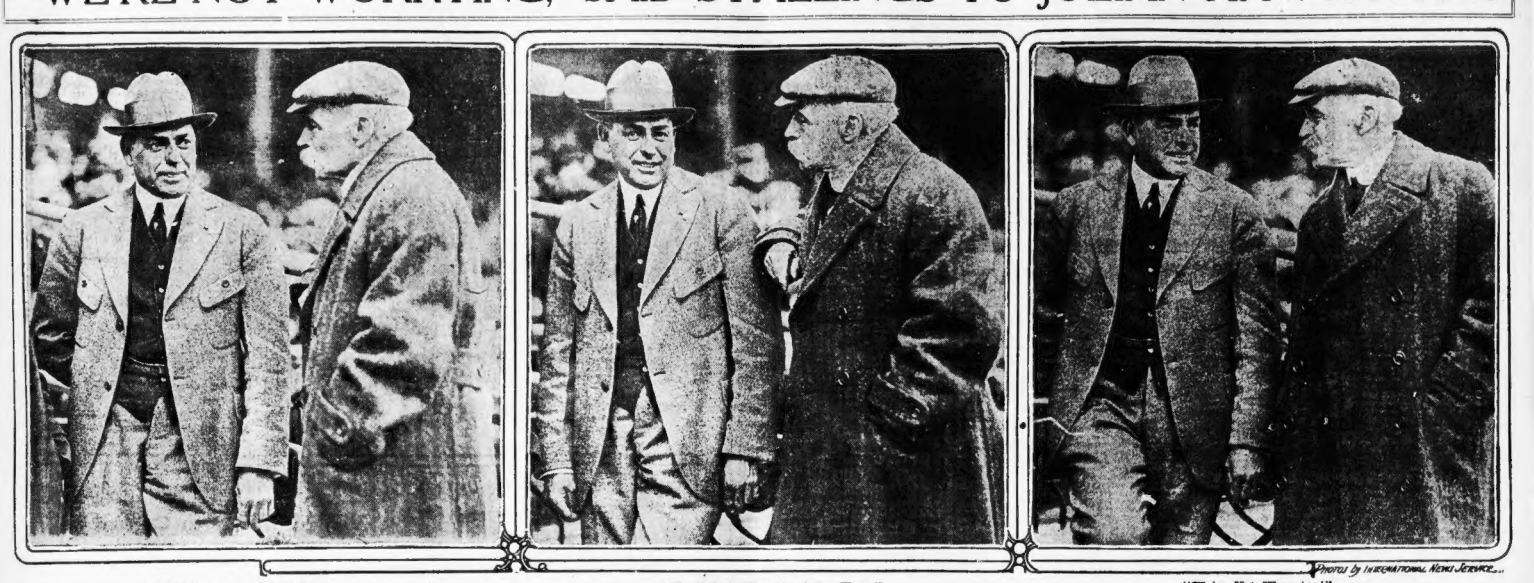
BRAVES TAKE OPENING GAME FROM DODGERS IN EASY FASHION, 7 TO 2

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

WALTER JOHNSON TO OPPOSE RAY COLLINS IN PITCHING DUEL AT WASHINGTON TODAY

"WE'RE NOT WORRYING," SAID STALLINGS TO JULIAN HAWTHORNE



"The Boys Are All Right." "The Defeats Were Good for Them." "We're Not Worrying!"

By JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

As the game deepened, that chill afternoon of last Saturday, it was fine to see how our Braves began to feel themselves. In the first innings it did not look so well; and I was on the way to thinking that Stallings, with whom I had been discussing the untoward results of the two encounters with the new Phillies, was taking too confident a view of the situation. I had asked him his opinion of those miscarriages of justice.

He leaned at ease against a post of the grand stand and his tanned visage betrayed only quiet composure and serenity. "The boys are all right," he said. "The defeats were good for them; they will get interested from now on—and interesting! We're not worrying."

"They are in great shape," added Nickerson, who was standing near; "take this front seat, and you'll see something."

"Revenge!" suggested I.

Stallings just smiled, and shrugged his shoulders. "Oh well," he rejoined. He has a way of speaking volumes and saying little; and I, having had opportunity to become familiar with his manifestations, felt assured that the Dodgers were facing a disappointment—assuming, that is, that they really imagined the Braves to be anything less than champions still.

But it was a cold day, and Aitchison, a mysterious and sinister personage, with a deceiving slouch and a terrific delivery, made himself disagreeable for several innings. Crutcher, on the other hand, all fire and steel springs, was a Pons Asinorum for the Dodgers; but Gowdy could not hit, and the magic lightnings of Maranville and Evers scotched runs but could not get any. Time passed, and I admired the continued stoicism of Stallings. Was he bluffing, or was something up his sleeve?

Then, in the eighth, Brooklyn made its run. The Braves had two, but the margin was too small for comfort.

Crutcher seemed to be doing as well as ever, but Stallings has intuitions, and replaced him with Strand. Then came the debacle. With three on bases, and one out, the Dodgers had their chance, but the Braves were now playing in their old and true form, nine men as one. They were irresistible. A perfectly horizontal liner to Maranville incredibly stopped in his glove, and in a moment the gray uniforms were trotting out into the field, and Ragon was leading the forlorn hope on the mound. A good man, but impotent against such adversaries.

Everybody was shouting, and Waterloo was milk and water in comparison. Stallings met my eye and slightly smiled. The next instant Evers had sprained his ankle-bone, and Stallings vanished. Nothing is quite perfect in this world; but there is only one Braves.

Evers may be out of the game for two weeks. An examination showed that the plucky leader sustained a severe sprain of the ankle.

SMITH-M'CARTHY CLASH TOMORROW

Tom McCarthy of Butte, Montana, a cousin of Luther McCarthy, has been substituted for Battling Levinsky against Gunboat Smith in the main bout at the Atlas A. A. tomorrow night.

The managers of Smith and Levinsky could not agree on a New York referee. Jim Buckley, manager of Smith, was willing to take any Boston man as the judge of the contest, but Dan Morgan, manager of Levinsky, would not let his man box with a Boston man as the third party in the ring.

McCarthy is a big card in New York, where he has been boxing every week since last year. McCarthy beat Levinsky two weeks ago in Brooklyn, and last Saturday night defeated Colin Bell.

"Gunboat" Smith is the only man who ever won a referee's decision over Willard. The gunner met the champion in a twenty-round engagement in San Francisco on May 26, 1915—not quite two years ago—and when the final shot had been fired Smith was declared a winner.

Willard, of course, has improved a great deal since then. Smith, however, believes that he would be able to win from the champion in a limited bout.

Stuart Donnelly of Indianapolis, who has been fighting in Cuba, will meet Charles Boyers in the semi-final tussle of eight rounds. There will also be a couple of good preliminary contests.

Howard McRae, the Cambridge featherweight, tackles Jimmy Gray of New York, in one of the six-round bouts.

The opening preliminary of six rounds will be between Jimmy Flynn of Everett and Joe Trainor of Somerville.

BRAVES DEFEAT DODGERS IN OPENING HOLIDAY GAME

single, sent three more runs over the plate.

Strand pitched consistently, striking out one man in each inning except the eighth. All of Brooklyn's hits were wasted, except two.

An enthusiastic crowd of 9,000 saw the game and the day was perfect. Jack Coombs, formerly of the Athletics, pitched the last three innings for Brooklyn and on pure nerve kept the Braves scoreless.

FIRST INNING.

Brooklyn—O'Mara sent up a high fly for Magee. Daubert had two strikes called on him and missed the third one. Schultz put a single in left field, but was left when Myers gathered in Wheat's skyscraper near the right field foul line. NO RUNS.

Braves—Moran walked and drew four balls. Fitzpatrick, after bunting a foul, was hit by a pitched ball. The bases filled when Connolly smashed one through the box which Dell partially blocked but could not stop. Magee fled to Wheat in short left, the runners holding their bases. Big Schmidt got one to his liking and sent it over Stengel's head in right for three bases and scoring Moran. Fitzpatrick and Connolly. Smith singled to left, scoring Schmidt, but was out when he tried to stretch the hit. Wheat to Cutshaw. Maranville flied out to O'Mara. FOUR RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

Brooklyn—Cutshaw was thrown out by Smith on a fine play. Hummel batted for Stengle and walked. Strand threw wild trying to catch Hummel off first and the latter took second. Myers popped to Schmidt. McCarthy scratched a single along the third base line, Hummel taking third. Hummel scored and McCarthy reached second on a double steal. Gowdy's throw being rather high. Dell was called out on strikes.—ONE RUN.

Braves—Hummel went to right field for Brooklyn. Gowdy struck out. Strand hit to Dell and went out at first. Moran singled over third base. He stole second. Fitzpatrick flied to Wheat. NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING.

Brooklyn—O'Mara flied to Magee. Daubert out, Maranville to Schmidt. Schultz fanned. NO RUNS.

Braves—Connolly was thrown out by Schultz. O'Mara threw out Magee. Schmidt beat out a slow one down the first base line, but was out stealing. McCarty to Cutshaw. NO RUNS.

FOURTH INNING.

Brooklyn—Wheat struck out. Cutshaw sent up a high foul for Red Smith. Hummel doubled to right. Maranville threw out Myers. NO RUNS.

Braves—Smith pasted a hard single to left. Smith took second when Maranville was thrown out, Cutshaw to Daubert. Gowdy flied to Cutshaw. Strand flied to Hummel. NO RUNS.

FIFTH INNING.

Brooklyn—McCarty was thrown out by Maranville. Dell doubled to right. O'Mara struck out. Daubert singled to left and Dell, trying to score, was easily thrown out. Connolly to Gowdy. NO RUNS.

Braves—Moran walked. Fitzpatrick sacrificed, grounding to Daubert. Connolly doubled to right, scoring Moran. Magee fanned. Schmidt made his third hit, a double to centre, scoring Connolly. Smith also put in his third hit, a hard single to left, Schmidt scoring. Maranville flied to Hummel. THREE RUNS.

SIXTH INNING.

Brooklyn—Schultz fanned. Wheat walked. Strand threw out Cutshaw. Wheat taking second. Hummel doubled to the score board, scoring Wheat. Maranville tossed out Myers. ONE RUN.

Braves—Coombs went into pitch. Zimmerman to right field and Hummel to first base, Daubert retiring from the game. Gowdy went out, Cutshaw to Hummel. Strand popped to O'Mara. Schultz made a fast play on Moran's slow one and retired him at first. NO RUNS.

SEVENTH INNING.

Brooklyn—McCarty fanned. Jack Coombs got a fine reception from the crowd as he stepped to the plate. Maranville tossed him out. O'Mara singled to right. Zimmerman singled to left, O'Mara taking third. On the throw to third, Zimmerman went to second. Maranville threw out Schultz. NO RUNS.

Braves—Cutshaw threw out Fitzpatrick. Connolly walked. He was out stealing, McCarthy to Cutshaw. Magee walked. McCarthy's throw to Cutshaw got him as he tried to steal. NO RUNS.

EIGHTH INNING.

Brooklyn—Maranville threw out Wheat. The Rabbit went into left field and got Cutshaw's fly. Hummel flied to Moran.—NO RUNS.

Braves—Coombs put in Mr. Coombs and went out at first. Smith went out the same way. Maranville walked. He got a good start and stole second. Gowdy walked. Strand flied out to Myers. NO RUNS.

NINTH INNING.

Important Changes in Yale Varsity Boat

NEW HAVEN, April 19.—Two changes of importance are planned for the Yale crew this week. Coe, who was shifted from the regulare to the second boat last week, will be sent back to bow in the first shell, and Munson, who took his place, will resume his old position.

Sheldon, the big football player who rowed No. 6 on the varsity eight last year against Harvard, but was sent to the second boat last week, will resume his old position at No. 6 in the first eight. He will displace Whittlesey.

Brooklyn Celtics Beaten at Soccer

NEWARK, N. J., April 19.—One of the three big soccer cup finals, in two of which the Brooklyn Celtics are the contenders, was decided at Hartell's Oval, when the Scottish-Americans of Kearney, N. J., defeated the Celts, 1 to 0, before a crowd of 5,000.

Carl Page finished first in the three-mile road race which was held at Lexington today under the auspices of the Lexington A. A. The event was open only to Lexington runners. Ralph Currier was second, John Corbin third, while Lionel Bartlett finished fourth. The winners time was 17m. 11 4-5s. Page led throughout the greater part of the race and finished a quarter of a mile ahead of Currier.

COLLINS OUT TO WIN FOR RED SOX

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 19.—After a quiet Sunday spent in enjoying the luxury of leading the American League race, the Red Sox set about today to annex another game from the Washington club.

"Uncle Bill" Carrigan figures that Walter Johnson will surely be sent after the Boston scalps. The "Big Swede" pitched the opening game for the Senators on Wednesday and did no more work until he warmed up to do the rescue act for his team mates on Saturday.

His rescue act was a distinct fizzle as everyone knows. With two on bases he faced Duffy Lewis in the ninth inning and Duffy promptly poasted the ball to centre field, sending two runs across the plate and winning the game for the Red Sox.

All that, however, is ancient history. Gratified to win that first game from the Senators, "Uncle Bill" and his crew manoeuvered all morning to win the second game.

COLLINS PICKED TO PITCH.

The players met in a room of their hotel to devise ways and means of accomplishing their purpose and after the meeting adjourned Carrigan announced that "Pete" Collins would probably do the pitching for Boston. "Pete" and Walter had two or three battles last season and the Boston southpaw didn't get any the worst of it.

No wonder if Clarke Griffith will claim Collins used the emery ball in case his side loses? He made the claim against Ernest Shore after Saturday's game and saved up a few sample balls which he has forwarded to Ban Johnson. The Red Sox simply laugh at the Washington manager's ravings. As a matter of fact, Carrigan and Speaker caught "Griff" in the act of roughing up a baseball on the concrete grandstand.

"The idea is simply ridiculous," repeated Carrigan today. "Shore has plenty of stuff without resorting to the emery ball. Besides, do you think I would risk having Shore fined $100 and suspended for a period? Not on your life."

JANVRIN RESUMES GOGGLES.

Janvrin has resumed his yellow goggles and wears them all the time he is not playing ball or sleeping. He grew better on Friday and he loaned the yellow lamps to Del Gainor, who became afflicted with the same kind of inflammation that troubled Janvrin, but was forced to buy another pair after Saturday's game. On the Washington grounds the sun shines right in the third baseman's eyes and doubtless this had something to do with the return of Janvrin's ailment.

New Yorker Wins Alley Title.

NEW YORK, April 19.—The championship tournament of the National Bowling Association resulted as follows:

All-Around—Thomas J. Scannell of the New York A. C., 1,935, an average of 242 for nine games.

Team—George Newman New York, 873; Frank Miller, Arthur Ryan, Paul Smith, Richard Scott, N. Y. A. C., 3,466. Joseph A. Fitzpatrick, Manhattan Bowling Club, New York, 3,466.

"The Rabbit's" Column By Walter J. Maranville SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

All you "fans" probably remember when the Braves were in the South this Spring Martin, one of our utility players, was injured and forced out of the game for a long period. Manager Stallings remained idle and expect to get along till Martin returned to the game? No. Not so with Manager Stallings. He was on the job the same day that Martin was injured and closed the deal whereby Eddie Fitzpatrick would come to the Braves.

What a wonderful move that was is fully demonstrated as Fitzpatrick was forced to valuable acquisition to the team as a result of Evers' injury in the game Saturday. Manager Stallings is always looking forward and therefore always prepared. Of course the former International League player is not the same star that Evers is, but he is a hustler and we all expect him to make a name for himself while playing in the absence of our fighting captain.

The loss of Johnny Evers is a sad blow and he surely will be missed. After his injury Saturday nearly all the members of our team could have cried. We respect every inch of Evers. He is always playing the game for everything it is worth. He figgis from start to finish and the rest of us follow him. He is a born leader and he will be missed.

Although Evers will be greatly missed, he will not cripple the team. When the Braves lose the services of a valuable man it tends to instill even more fight in the players. We will fight our very hardest now and we will win many games.

"Red" Smith has started to bat and I predict that he will be up among the leaders when the season closes. "Red" hits the ball square on the nose and sends it on a line. You will notice that Smith started batting Saturday against the Dodgers. You know Smith was once a member of Roberts' team and he surely does like to slam the old pill against the Brooklyn pitchers.

The ways of baseball managers, at times, are strange, strange ways. The case of Roger Bresnahan, who manages the Cubs, is a fair example.

Roger, who owned a ball player named Tommy Leach, discovered a short time ago that he would have no need for the veteran's services during 1915. At the same time Charles Herzog, who manages the Cincinnati Reds, discovered that he needed a veteran ball player, and he decided that Tommy Leach was the very ball player that he wanted to get.

"I'd like to get Leach from the Cubs and if some deal can be made Leach will wear a Cincinnati uniform in 1915," said Herzog.

Did Bresnahan immediately arrange a trade with Herzog for Leach? Did he sell Leach to Herzog and add a few thousand shekels to the bank account of the Cubs? No, Bresnahan didn't. He just released Leach outright, whereupon Herzog signed him up.

In other words, Herzog got Leach for nothing although he had publicly announced that he was willing to give cash or promising players to the Cubs for Leach.

Miller Huggins, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, is an example of what sometimes befalls a fellow who is too shrewd.

Last Winter Huggins made a trade with the Pirates whereby he got five ball players for three. Everybody said Miller had been cheated—and he was such a nice little fellow, too. Some folks were for reporting Fred Clarke to the police for his action in "cheating" Miller.

"Oh, yes, you remember how it turned out, don't you? The men that Huggins gave away "shivered"—and the five he got rounded into stars and enabled the Cardinals to make a great fight for the pennant in 1914.

Since then Huggins has been known as the "David Harum" of baseball. A dozen times since then Huggins has tried to make trades—and just about as often has he been balked.

"Gosh, it's awful," laments Huggins. "I believe if I wanted to trade 'Slim' Sallee and Catcher Snyder for a pair of bat boys I couldn't make a deal. Every one of the other managers would think I had a few cards up my sleeve."

MAHONEY FIRST IN ROAD RACE

Honors in the ten-mile road race of the Central Jamaica Plain Club were captured today by Mahoney, the fleet H. A. A. long distant runner. He gave a fine account of himself and flashed across the finish line 25-yards ahead of Anthony Rathgeb of in Irish American A. A. Mahoney's actual time was 54m. 20s.

The time prize was won by James Hennigan of the Dorchester Club who ran from scratch. His actual time was 51m. 30s.

The race was a uninteresting affair from the time that Mayor Curley sent the first runner away from the mark until the contest ended.

The winner gave a fine account of himself. He used excellent judgment throughout the grind and did not get a place among the pace makers until the eighth mile had been reached. He then did not experienced much trouble in passing th etired runners and he was soon leading the field.

The order of the first ten men to finish and their actual time was as follows:

1—Mahoney, H. A. A.	M.	S.
2—Anthony Rathgeb, Irish American A.A.	55	20
3—Fred Nagle, Dorchester Club	55	24
4—Albert Amiott, Dorchester Club	56	43
5—James Hennigan, Dorchester Club	51	30
6—Thomas Hennigan, Dorchester Club	54	21
7—Obert Hollis	56	40

Canadians Marathon Favorites

Thousands Watch B. A. A. Race

two hours twenty-one minutes and eighteen and one-fifth seconds, just three years ago. In doing this, Ryan surpassed all expectations and lowered by more than three minutes, the record held by his predecessor, Tom Longboat, the Indian, who made such a notable reputation in 1907.

Experts believe that the time made by Ryan will stand for years to come. The same was said when Longboat made his mark, but the reverse happened.

CANADIANS FAVORITES.

In looking over the list of entries, two of the runners, both Canadians, stood out prominently. These two men were Edard Fabre of Montreal and Lee Jamieson of Hamilton. This was the fifth attempt of the former to start in the long grind. His first appearance was made back in 1911. In all his races he has been a conspicuous competitor.

Last year Fabre was the second runner to cross the tape. His time for the course was two hours twenty-five minutes and fifteen seconds. His condition after the long grind was said to have been remarkable considering the fatiguing journey.

His countryman, Jamieson, is another runner of repute. He is a full blooded Indian. His warrior ancestors were all excellent runners. Jamieson has been making wonderful time in his practice runs and when he entered the field today he was in the pink of condition, ready to face all the obstacles that arise during this long grind.

KENNEDY WILL BEAR WATCHING.

Montreal had another formidable contestant in Bert Kennedy. Although not as well known as his fellow townsman, Bell is considered a fast and steady runner and his position among the racers was of interest. Gotham sent several stars over for this classic event. Prominent among them were Hugh Henahan and George B. Moss, the latter one of the first to file an entry.

Although not receiving the support of his club, Bill Kennedy, who wore the colors of the Illinois A. C. of Chicago, has made the journey to Boston on his own resources, and with a determination to make a showing that will cause much talk in his native city. Kennedy has trained hard for today's race and toed the mark as one of the favorites to win.

Much local interest was centred on A. F. Merchant of Everett, Cliff Horne and Arthur Roth of the Dorchester Club. Merchant's recent winning of the St. Mary's race, in a blinding snowstorm, and clothed only in the scanty gymnasium apparel, was without doubt one of the severest tests that a runner could undergo. That he has the stamina to keep on more than an even footing with any of the contestants is without doubt.

Horne needs no introduction to local followers of the Marathon. He has always given an excellent account of himself in long distance runs, and his appearance today was a signal for much encouragement from the spectators. His fellow club member, Roth, has been heard from before. His past is known as being creditable to both himself and the famous organization which he represents. He, too, will be a big favorite locally.

Of the other local entries, those of Albert Hayes of Dorchester Club and Art Garber of the North Dorchester A. C., were looked upon as favorable.

Boston Grappler in National Finals

SAN FRANCISCO, April 13. — The finals of the National amateur wrestling tournament conducted under the auspices of the Amateur Athletic Union, in connection with the Panama-Pacific Exposition, will be held here tonight. Winners of the eight classes will be awarded the title of national champions.

John Kilby of the Finn A. C., Boston, 135-pounder, won his way into the finals by defeating J. P. Parker, San Francisco, and George McLennon of Gary, Ind.

'Farmer' Bill Dryden to Wrestle Goulette

"Farmer" Bill Dryden, the New Hampshire middleweight champion wrestler, has been selected to meet Peter Goulette of Woonsocket at the Grand Opera House next Thursday night. It will be the famous farmer's first appearance in Boston, but his record has preceded him and he will find plenty of admirers when he tackles the fast flying Frenchman.

The match is to a finish, best two out of three falls, under catch-as-catch-can rules.

DIDIER FAVORITE IN BIG BIKE RACE

REVERE RACES TODAY.

Twenty-five-mile motor paced—Leon Didier vs. George Wiley vs. Victor Linart; "Lexington Special" (for boys); amateur and professional sprint events.

The 1915 bike season opens this afternoon at the Revere Cycle track with a big holiday card. Besides the main events of the day many side features have been arranged for, and "fans of the bowl" may rest assured that the initial meet will lack nothing in class or talent.

The main race of the day, a twenty-five-mile motor-paced race, will find at the tape such stars as Leon Didier, the sensational Frenchman; George Wiley, former middle distance champion, and Victor Linart, Belgium's premier rider.

Second only in interest to the main card will be the "Lexington Special," a race for boys. While the will be a novel introduction to Revere "fans," it promises to become a permanent feature judging by the amount of interest it has aroused and by the large list of entries.

DIDIER IS THE FAVORITE.

The boys in their tryouts have shown surprising skill and some close riding may be looked forward to when the pistol sounds for the sendoff.

In addition to the above features there will be the regular amateur and professional sprint races.

The motor-paced race, with its trio of evenly matched stars, should furnish the "fans" with a plenty of thrills. Didier, because best known to local audiences as one of the sensational riders of last season, is looked upon as the favorite. There are many, however, who hold Wiley to be his equal and are laying bets to finish in front. Linart is the "dark horse."

LINART HAS GREAT RECORD.

The last named rider has been burning the tracks in European meets and has a wonderful collection of medals to show for his prowess. What he will do in today's meet remains to be seen. On two occasions he all but won the world's motor-paced championship.

Clarence Carman was to have ridden in today's race, but an eleventh hour mishap made it impossible for him to contend. Didier is substituting for him and intends to prove to his local followers that he has lost none of his old-time speed and is still the master of thrills.

The three-cushion tournament for the championship of New England, which is being played at the Imperial Room, is creating more interest among the followers of the game —with the possible exception of Hoppe's appearance here—than any other billiard event this season.

There has never been a better field entered in this annual attraction and it can be truthfully said that there is not a weak player in the eight entered. Even Manuel, who has one the two games he played, stands just as good a chance of being in the lead at the finish of the tournament as any of those who have no losses charged against them.

Speed Kings Race at Readville Track

Motorcycle races, the like of which have never before been seen this side of the Mississippi, will be held at the new Readville Motor Park this afternoon.

"Al" Stratton and Irving Janke, both factory riders from Milwaukee, will uphold the honors of the Harley-Davidson Company in the professional events. The Pope team will consist of four men, captained by "Flying" Jack Yates of Lynn. A. Carlo, "Eddie" Haines of Lynn and Tom Croon of East Boston are the other members of this team.

A match race between two of the above riders will be another feature of the day's program which consists of the following events:

Mile motor bike, scratch. 5-mile (professional) unrestricted. 10-mile (professional) unrestricted. 10-mile (amateur) fully equipped. 2-mile (professional) restricted, no pots. 5-mile (professional) restricted, no pots.

R. Norris Williams to Lead Coast Invasion

Robert D. Wrenn of the National Lawn Tennis Association has appointed R. Norris Williams, 2d, the Harvard leader, to captain a team of four Eastern players who will journey to the coast to meet a Western combination, which will be captained by Maurice McLoughlin, the "California Comet."

This series of matches will be one of the sporting features of the Panama-Pacific Exposition. Coach, the Princeton star, is practically certain to go west with Williams and George C. Caner, the Harvard sophomore, may also be chosen to make the trip.

Harvard Team Opens Trip Schedule

Harvard's tennis team plays the Agawam Hunt Club at Providence this afternoon, starting the first match of its Southern trip. Tomorrow Captain R. Norris Williams will visit his old home in Philadelphia and the Philadelphia Cricket Club will be engaged. Other contests for the week are with Annapolis, the Chevy Chase Club of Washington, Norfolk, Va., Country Club, and Baltimore County Club. Aside from Williams, the other players making the trip are: Louris Curtiss, Bill Rand and George Caner. Manager G. H. Williams will be in charge.

WILLARD'S LIFE STORY

First Fight in East Against Pelky

AS TOLD BY HIMSELF

By ED W. SMITH.

Well Known Fight Referee and Ring Expert.

Herewith is presented the fourth instalment of Jess Willard's story of his own life, "How I Won the Championship." The first instalment appeared in the AMERICAN of Tuesday, April 13.

His story covers the Kansas giant's friends and ring life completely from his birth up to and including the now famous Havana battle.

HOW I WON THE TITLE— NO. 6.

As told by Jess Willard, heavyweight boxing champion of the world.

It happened that when I landed in Chicago I didn't cut much of a swath because it appeared that the sporting editors had been surfeited with "white hopes" now happily extinct.

The market had been glutted with a lot of big fellows, good, bad and indifferent, but of them of the latter classification, and as a result what I had to say didn't get much attention.

Still the bold ambition was there and I kept whacking away at it gamely enough, determined to force my way along. I had three fights in 1912, near Chicago. I whipped "Bull" Young in six rounds in Fort Wayne, Ind., then trimmed Frank Bowers in St. Charles, Ill., in three rounds and then down at South Chicago I again defeated John Young, this time in five rounds.

Then it was that Charley Cutler, who was handling my affairs, decided to try the Metropolitan game. So we went East.

First Fight in East Against Pelky.

The first fight I got there was with Arthur Pelky, the man who was in the ring with Luther McCarthy the day the latter died in an Alberta ring. This was on July 29, 1912. I bested Pelky without much trouble, but the bout didn't seem to do much of a hit. They continued to laugh at me but I knew I could beat all of them and kept whacking away at it.

Three weeks later I got on with Luther McCarthy and bested him, I thought. That seemed to create a little more respect for me but it didn't get me much in a money sense.

Finding myself deserted in New York and without much money, I went to Tom O'Rourke, but that veteran manager wanted fifty per cent. of my money, so I dropped him. Billy Gibson advised me to hook up with Billy Heckler, his brother-in-law, which I did.

Now, to show how much money I was getting, I will say that my share of the receipts out of both the Pelky and the McCarthy battles was exactly about six per cent. of the gross. And at Madison Square Garden, too!

Finally they offered me twenty per cent. to meet "One-Round" Davis but Davis went to New York, where Soldier Kearns knocked him out. Then I asked for twenty-five per cent., saying Davis was not as good a card as before. Thereupon, they had me barred for a year. Fine, wasn't it?

A year later, however, they still wanted me to fight Davis and I did the fight drawing $7,100 in Buffalo. So you see my demands were not exorbitant at all. Incidentally I disposed of Davis in the second round.

How He Came to Tie Up with Tom Jones.

It was along about this time that I began to think myself of more than a regular manager who could push my claims and handle my business the way I thought it should be handled. My contract with Cutler was still in force and I went back to Chicago. There I talked with Tom Jones, who said he would take me if I could clear myself of Cutler.

We dickered over the price of the contract, finally setting it at $2,500, which Jones agreed to pay.

Later, Jones went to California and I followed him some time afterwards. I met him in San Francisco, where we renewed negotiations, finally settling on the whole thing. I to get half of what he paid for the contract. And that's how I came to tie up with Jones.

WILLARD TO SHOW IN HUB TONIGHT

Jess Willard, the new heavyweight champion, will give an exhibition at the Boston Arena this evening. The coming of the conqueror of Jack Johnson has aroused a tremendous amount of interest, and a big crowd is sure to turn out to see the title holder.

Henny Oathues, who is in charge of tonight's show, has arranged an attractive program. The festivities will be started with three wrestling matches. Willard will then enter the ring at the Arena and will give his exhibition with his sparring partners.

Willard will be unable to do any boxing as it is a public exhibition. The big cowboy, however, will punch the bag, toss a medicine ball around with his sparring partners, skip rope, do a little wrestling and other stunts which are familiar to those who frequent training camps of boxers who are preparing for important tussles within the home pieces.

Boston's boxing "fans" are anxious to see what the champion looks like in fighting togs. They are also eager to see how he moves around the ring and to see his marvelous strength.

The champion will be accompanied by his entire company, which is in charge of Jack Curley and Tom Jones. This is the last exhibition which they will make in the East for some time, as they have secured transportation on a train which will leave for the West late tonight.

There are few champions in the history of the ring who are as popular as Willard. He overcame big odds in his fight to obtain ring fame and in defeating Johnson he vanquished a man who has been a menace to the boxing game.

Jay Gould Beaten by Joshua Crane

PHILADELPHIA, April 13.—Jay Gould endeavored to give Joshua Crane, of Boston, the odds of half thirty for a plaque in court tennis at the Racquet Club here and was beaten by three sets to one.

The score was 6—3, 6—4, 7—6, 6—3 in favor of Crane.

A Man and His Wife

Isabel Is Sorry She Showed John She Could Save

Her references stated that she was an excellent cook.

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water.

CHAPTER XXXV.

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

CYNTHIA went away the day following the Hendricks's altercation with regard to Duval. Isabel saw her go with a sensation of relief. She had felt uncomfortable in the maid's presence ever since Cynthia had handed Mr. Duval's handkerchief to John. Isabel suspected that the girl had been sure that the handkerchief was not her master's and had chosen this way of "setting back" at her mistress for having discharged her. The wife wanted to forget the whole episode. John made this easier by ignoring the subject entirely.

He was, in fact, unwilling to return a disagreeable discussion. He had thought out the matter for himself and had reached a satisfactory conclusion. He had at first been very angry with Isabel, but as the day progressed and things at the office went smoothly—as his head cleared, aching and his mind became clearer—he pondered the subject mately and calmly. He knew that Isabel had spoken the truth to him.

She had been wrong in accepting Duval's escort without consulting her husband, yet John was sure she would never do so again. She had been moved to this action by feminine pique at a private appointment she had made with Adelaide Simmons. After all, had Isabel not loved him she would not have been so jealous. She had seen in what an embarrassing position her recklessness had placed her and had learned her lesson. Her husband would say nothing more about the affair, but would magnanimously overlook it.

Perhaps he did not confess even to himself that he did not wish to give Isabel the opportunity to voice again her conviction that she had a right to be as secretive as he. That was the ridiculous way a woman regarded matters. There was no use in strengthening her in her erroneous views by allowing her to discourse upon them.

He knew that Isabel's devotion for him was deep, that she could never love another man. She was good and virtuous and even if she had been indiscreet, she would not be so again.

Just at present there was little time for Isabel to be "indiscreet." Cynthia left on Friday and for several days the mistress was busy cleaning the apartment and getting it in good condition for the next incumbent. On Monday John inquired if a new maid had been engaged yet.

"Yes," Isabel said, "at least, I have asked Ida Ferris to tell her cook to send me Jennie Doyle, the Irish girl she mentioned. She is coming to see me tomorrow."

TO GET READY TO ENTERTAIN

"Be sure to tell her that we expect to entertain quite a bit," John advised. "It is high time we were beginning that kind of thing."

Isabel was silent. She saw that John had not abandoned the plan for the dinner for Adelaide Simmons. Nor did she intend to give up her schemes for a dinner for the Ferrises.

The prospective servant proved to be a good-looking girl. Isabel was quite thrilled at the thought of having such a competent person in her employ. Her references stated that she was an excellent cook, and she voiced no objection to the idea of her employer's entertaining.

"I am used to that kind of thing," she said. "But, of course, I would not expect to do the washing and ironing."

"Not even to help with it?" Isabel asked.

"Yes, ma'am." The reply was decided. Evidently Jennie knew her own mind. "I am not a good laundress and I do not pretend to be. As there are only two in the family I'll start with you for twenty-five dollars at first—though I have been getting twenty-eight in my last place. But there were three in the family there. And I like your looks."

"She's a big improvement on Cynthia," John declared approvingly on the first night of the new maid's presence, after the girl had brought in the coffee and left the dining room. "This is the best dinner we've had for many a long day. I don't grudge the extra wages when I get such good service."

"She is nice," agreed Isabel. "But, hesitatingly, "the laundress will have to do all the ironing as well as the washing now—as Jennie doesn't do either. That means a bigger drain on my allowance, since you can't pay it—can you?"

"No, I can't," John affirmed. "We settled all that—didn't we? And anyway, what does that little bit more cash weigh amount to—since you are always able to lay aside something toward incidentals? It's worth a good deal to be spared the worry and trouble of an indifferent servant, my dear."

"But the Spring is almost here," Isabel objected, "and I shall need new clothes."

SHE IS SORRY SHE TOLD HIM ABOUT SAVING

"Oh, that's all right," John said lightly. "I'll help you about the clothes if I can. And now let's talk about our first real dinner party. What shall it be?"

Jennie took hold of the work so well that we need not wait very long to her account. I think the date must depend on you—I mean we can have the dinner whenever you feel you can pay for the extra things we will have to buy for it," Isabel spoke gently, yet firmly. "For you know, dear, she added, "dinners cost a lot."

John looked at her reproachfully. "My dear," he protested, "I hate to say it, but you are letting the thought of money rule all your ideas. You have always had enough allowance to meet expenses heretofore, haven't you?"

"But we have not entertained," she reminded him.

"No, but we might have done so," he insisted. "Now, suppose, for instance, that I had not had to spend my money for a new overcoat this Winter—you would have yet money with which you paid my insurance. Surely you can save enough to give an occasional dinner. For I hope not to have to come back on you again, little wife, for help in my affairs. So the money with which you would be so generous to me as you have already been will not be touched by me, and can go for other matters. But," with an affectionate smile, "I can never forget that you handed it to me cheerfully and generously when I needed it."

She almost wished that he could forget it, almost wished that he had not known that she had been able to save any money. For now he was depending on it. Her savings would never be entirely hers again. If she could put aside a few dollars now and then, she would not tell her husband.

Then she called herself mean and stingy and, to soothe her conscience, asked John gently please to decide what guests he wanted to invite to their first company dinner.

Nervous Periodical Headaches

Succumb to Anti-Kamnia Tablets

This trouble commonly called "sick headache," is said to be due to the attention it gives to the nervous system. Often it is stated that a poor condition of the blood is a cause of these periodic spells, or that it is nervous condition; and in certain cases no doubt that is true.

Where treatment is demanded, it is more for the pain than the nerves, and Dr. A. F. Schellschmidt of Louisville, as found Anti-kamnia Tablets to give prompt and satisfactory relief. "Reliance may be insisted upon" he says, "and patient should go to bed, darken the room, and all the attendants are mainly did be as quiet as possible. As this will sometimes shorten the attack. The bowels should be kept free with Antidote," and then "find a short rub-down with a coarse towel will give grateful relief. Two Anti-kamnia Tablets when the first signs appear will usually prevent the attack. If the attack, one tablet every hour will shorten the attack and, "even causes and, vomiting." These may be obtained at all druggists Tablets. They are also unexcelled for nervous headaches, neuralgia, the

Zoe---The Story of a Great Love

Brooke Hears of the Strange Adventure with the Beautiful Zoe.

SYNOPSIS.

Noel Crawley, a successful painter, has painted the portrait of a beautiful woman whom he knows only as Zoe. She calls at his studio, and, on learning of his engagement, tries to kill herself. She goes, swearing she will commit suicide the day he marries.

About this time Godfrey Brooke, an old friend of Crawley's, appears on the scene after an absence of several years in Africa. He sees that something is troubling Crawley, and urges his friend to confide in him.

(By CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN.)

CRAWLEY sat up suddenly and turned and faced Brooke. "Look here," he said, "I don't see why I shouldn't. I can trust you."

"You ought to know that by this time. What is it?"

"I've had a horrible shock," said Crawley in a most dejected tone of voice.

"I know it," said Brooke. "I knew it. Now out with it! What is it?"

"And somehow or other," the younger man went on, "I don't seem able to throw off a sort of feeling of presentiment that she really meant it."

"She? Who?"

"Zoe."

"Who's Zoe, in the name of wonder?" said Brooke, eyeing Crawley with deepening suspicion. "Look here, my son," he added seriously, "just you pull yourself together and tell me what's wrong. I shall begin to think you've lost your reason if you go on like this."

"For my soul," groaned Crawley, "if she does it I verily believe I shall lose my reason."

"Does what? Pray be more explicit. Anyhow, I've got something out of you. It's a woman, I might have known it. Gad, what a man you were for breaking women's poor little hearts. Well, who is it this time?"

TELLS BROOKE ABOUT THE LADY

"She was sitting there in that chair you are sitting in," said Crawley, with a nervous gesture, "and she swore that if I didn't let her stay here straight and take her away to Paris tomorrow—she knew I was going to Paris tomorrow—she'd kill herself there and then."

"Whew!" Brooke breathed more quickly.

"Yes, and she meant it," said Crawley. "And, what's more, she very nearly did it."

"What?" The usually impassive and undemonstrative Godfrey Brooke was startled. "Good lord, she?" he asked eagerly. "How did she come here? Tell me everything. She seems to be a highly unethical creature, whoever she is."

"I suppose," said Crawley, "that she is the most beautiful woman I have ever seen."

"Then you like her?" Brooke's question betrayed surprise.

Crawley shrugged his slim shoulders. "In a way of course," he said, with some embarrassment. "She's altogether a most extraordinary woman, quite different from anybody you've ever come across. But, you see, I regarded her purely as a model. I tell you, Brooke, and I do not exaggerate, she is the most perfectly formed woman I have ever seen. She might have sat to Phidias. And she is beautiful. I have never seen anything to beat her." He spoke enthusiastically. His fine dark eyes lit up. Even the pronsie Brooke saw that it was the artist who spoke and not the man.

"So there was no personal element in it—eh?" asked Brooke. "You didn't ask this incomparable goddess to marry you?"

"Marry me? Good heavens, Brooke!" He broke off abruptly.

"I see," said Brooke. "Where did you pick her up?"

"I didn't pick her up, as you expressively put it, at all. She came to me—came here to this place. It was about a year ago, perhaps a little more; but that doesn't matter. She said her name was Zoe and she wanted me to paint her portrait."

"This sounds more interesting," said Brooke. "Is she a—lady, a lady?"

"Without a doubt."

"Married?"

"I don't know or care. She says she is. She never mentions him. I don't suppose he exists. She was only Zoe to me. You understand?"

"Perfectly," said Brooke, with a bland smile. "Go on; the story is most interesting."

FIRST LEARNED OF LOVE FROM EVA

Crawley frowned. "I wish to Heaven I'd never met the woman," he exclaimed savagely. "It looks to me very much as if she's going to make a mess of my life for me."

"So far," said Brooke, "it looks to me very much as if you're making a very great fuss about nothing. That sort of woman isn't worth a thought. But continue, mon ami. She came, she saw, she conquered—eh! And you painted her portrait?"

"Painted her portrait! Heavens, I've been doing little else but paint and draw her ever since."

"The deuce you have!" Brooke smiled again. "And may I ask what Miss Warren says to this?"

Crawley frowned. "I wish," he said irritably, "you would leave Miss Warren's name out of this conversation. As a matter of fact Eva Warren had not come into my life at all at the time about which I am speaking; and you may believe me or not, but I never knew what love was until I met Eva. As for the rest—ugh! I wish I could wipe it clean out."

"A lot of us wish that, my son," said Brooke. "But, go on and tell me how the affair of Zoe, the superbly beautiful, progressed."

"It's an awkward thing to say," Crawley continued, "but I was fascinated and a bit mean; but the fascination was literally flung from self at me, though I still affirm that to me personally she was a perfect model. Nothing more. To me she was and always will be a beautiful picture, a rare work of Nature, the highest expression of female loveliness. Do you understand?"

Brooke nodded. What he thought, or understood, he kept to himself.

"At first I thought she was an ordinary woman. She gave me two or three sittings in the ordinary way; but very soon discovered that she didn't care a rap about the picture. We became friends and she used to come in here at any time of the day or night and just do what she liked."

Odd Facts the World Over

A VISIT to the interior of a huge volcano in Hawaii is thus given by W. R. Castle:

"According to all the rules of school geographies a volcano ought to be situated on the top of a mountain; it ought to throw out stones and ashes and molten lava; its crater should be in the shape of an inverted cone, and should emit terrifying noises; periodically it should overwhelm a village or two. Kilauea, on the island of Hawaii, conforms to none of these specifications. It has thrown out neither stones nor ashes since it annihilated the army that was marching against Kamehameha, almost a hundred and fifty years ago.

"The walk across the floor of the crater, about two and a half miles, is over a hard lava bed, more or less cracked down, since lava hardens quickly, and remains as it flowed, in great ropes and ripples. A few yards from shore—one comes gradually to call the bank 'shore'—a ragged crack is crossed by a wooden bridge."

Among the most remarkable laws of the Incas were those concerning taxation. Every province paid only that taxes were not paid in money, but in work and in produce. The Inca emperors thought it unjust to demand that taxes should be paid in any kind of commodity that the people could not produce by their own industry.

The people also paid another sort of tribute—military service. Clothes and arms for the soldiers, and for the poor who could not work themselves, were provided at infirmity. The cloth was made of wool from the flocks of llamas that abounded in the mountains. On the plains of the seacoast, where the climate is warm and they do not dress in woolens, the people made cotton cloths, the cotton being supplied from the crops of the emperor. The shoes were made in the provinces where aloes were most abundant, for they are made of the leaves of a tree called maguey. Each province furnished its own produce, and no province had to supply anything that did not belong to it.

There was a mandate that forbade beggary and destitution.

Travelers have noticed how the laughter of the different nations varies. The Italian laugh is languid, but musical; the Germans laugh in a deliberate fashion. The French are spasmodic and uncertain, the upper-class English guarded and not always genuine, the lower-class English explosive, the Scottish of all classes hearty, and the Irish rollicking. The Chinese laugh is not so expressive as the European; it is usually a titter rather than a genuine outburst of merriment.

One of the most interesting remnants of a prehistoric race in the United States is that now known as Frijoles Valley, which lies south of Santa Fe and east of Albuquerque, New Mexico. From examination of the ruins of this section archeologists are of the opinion that this lake existed at the same time as Lake Bonneville, in Utah, and other ancient lakes of the arid West, during the glacial period. The theory of the existence of an ancient lake in the valley is based on the presence of fine clays and sand sediments. Sea cliffs, terraces, beaches, beach ridges, deltas, and bars are found on all sides of the lake flat, at altitudes between six thousand one hundred and seven thousand two hundred feet above the sea level.

He Had It Out

There was great excitement in the family. Billy, aged seven, had been advised by the doctor to have a tooth out.

Of course, in most families this would not have been exciting, but Billy was known to be extremely timid.

"You have it out like a brave boy, won't you?" pleaded his mother. "One sharp prick and the pain will be all over."

But Billy remained obstinately opposed to the idea.

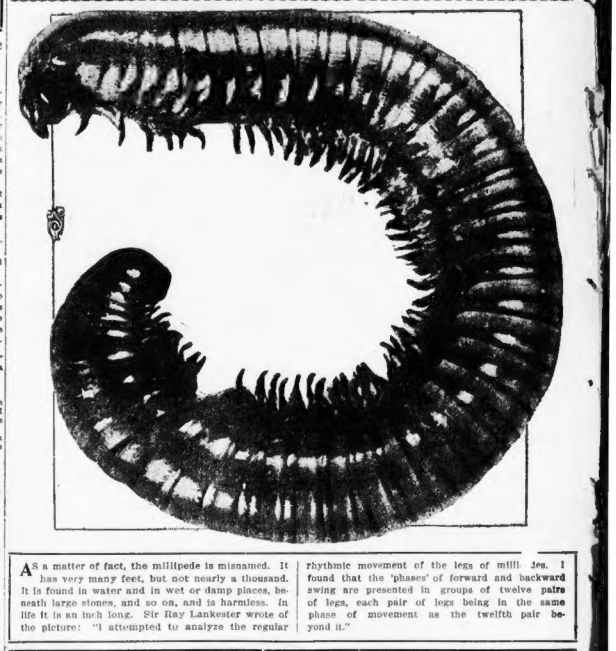
"Show you've got some pluck," suggested father.

"You will have it out, then?" pleaded mother again.

"Yes, Bill," chirped in his brother, "have it out. It'll be one less to clean."

1,000 Feet in an Inch

Here Is a Millipede Magnified. In Reality It Has Not a Thousand Legs



AS a matter of fact, the millipede is misnamed. It has very many feet, but not nearly a thousand. It is found in water and in wet or damp places, beneath large stones, and so on, and is harmless. In life it is an inch long. Sir Ray Lankester wrote of the picture: "I attempted to analyze the regular rhythmic movement of the legs of milli des. I found that the 'phases' of forward and backward swing are presented in groups of twelve pairs of legs, each pair of legs being in the same phase of movement as the twelfth pair beyond it."

Stories by Successful Wives

Another Woman Tells How She Helped Her Husband Win His Way

By a Successful Wife

WITHOUT egotism, I think I can call myself a successful wife and mother. My husband and I were married when he was twenty-three and I twenty-one. I left a home of luxuries, but when I met and loved my husband I did not give these things a thought. There were no scheming, calculating ideas in my mind. After a two-year engagement we were married on a $16-a-week salary.

Yes, when I look back now it seems incredible to think we not only lived, but saved on that salary.

Of course, where one lives tells the story, and we chose a German neighborhood, where things were clean and cheap. The first year of our married life brought us a daughter and three years later a son, both born at the same house.

Then my husband received $18 a week, and since then a steady increase in salary, until today, when I can happily say we are very comfortable. One day we came to the realization that we would like to have a little home of our own. Surrounded as we were by thrifty Germans, it did not seem much of a credit to save, because they all did. When my children were small I had to take them out in the daytime to give them air and sunshine, and at night I did my own sewing and theirs. I did not ask any credit for doing these things. I did them as only my wifely duty. I was surrounded by women who did the same. That is what environment did for me. Surely I went to a hard school when I took at some of the brides of today.

When we decided to have a little home for ourselves we sat down one night and figured out, just for speculation, what we had paid out in rent since we had been married. Our rent was $12 a month. The amount was $1,830.

Think of it, and no returns—just a roof over our heads. Don't think one cannot do the same today. These flats are clean, beautiful six-family white-stone buildings. The halls are all carpeted, and today they bring $15, an increase of $2 a month, rent.

We then took our savings ($500) and bought a house, and here we are. Of course all our kind friends and even relatives advised us not to try it. They said it would be impossible for us to meet our payments, but we are now out of the deep water.

Today my daughter is fifteen years old and my son twelve. I am a busy woman and try in every way still to practice economy wherever I can. I make my clothing and that of my daughter.

My good clothes I used to have made, but now, by the aid of a dressmaking class, I make them myself and so curtail expenses. Last Summer I made twelve dresses for my daughter and about eight for myself, to say nothing of the underclothing, even union suits for my son. I can make two for fifty cents.

I do not wash and iron, as I feel my husband can now afford to have that done, and so give some poorer person a chance, but all my other work I do—cooking, cleaning, etc.

Together with my housework I am interested in a multitude of things. I am a member of a card club, an ardent suffragist and am captain of our district. Just now we are working for a big mass meeting, and then we are going to plan our canvassing crusade.

I am president of a club of 500 women, a member of a church and do a great deal of work in it, a member of the Ladies' Aid, on the entertainment committee, and at present I am coaching a play of three acts.

Still I find time to watch my children's education; my husband leaves these things entirely to me. Their religious training has also been tenderly watched over, and their music, too. Many and many times do I sit at their side and see that they play and practice correctly.

And when the spirit move me I write short stories—sometimes they are accepted and sometimes not.

And though doing all these things, my husband's supper is ready for him when he comes home at night.

I have always been blessed with good health, am on my feet constantly, weigh 150 pounds. So you see, girls, it can be done.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system.

They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or disagreeable effects of any kind.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint with the attendant bad breath.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil, you will know them by their olive color.

Take one or two every night for a week and enjoy the effects. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

ALMOST CRAZY WITH ITCHING AND BURNING

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 26, 1915—"My face and body are a solid mass of little sores which itched and burned me so badly that I almost went crazy. They started in the form of little pimples which spread and formed sores. I could not sleep at night and at work if I became overheated it would itch something terrible. I used all kinds of soaps, salves and prescriptions that did me no good. I had this skin trouble for a year or more before I used Resinol. As soon as I began using Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap the itching and burning stopped at once, and in five weeks my face and body were as clear and soft as could be. I used only two jars of Resinol Ointment and three cakes of Resinol Soap. A friend of mine had a bad case of skin trouble. His face was broken out so badly he was ashamed to go out on the street. I told him to use Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap and in four weeks he was all well and one could not tell he ever had a pimple or sore on his face." (Signed) August E. TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor

Stocks were higher at the opening in New York and business was on a large scale. The weakness of Bethlehem Steel was a feature, it opening with a decline of 8½. Equipment issues were freely supplied in some instances and had a downward tendency. Rock Island was weak among railroads, sagging more than two points. Anaconda was strong among coppers. They benefitted as a class by the upturn of two pounds sterling in the price of the metal at London. The buying of Central Leather was based upon the prediction that this stock will be placed upon a 4 per cent. dividend basis in June. Among railroads to show substantial gains were New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio and Union Pacific. Reading was higher. This being a holiday, the Boston Stock Exchange was closed.

GAINS IN NEW YORK.

Among issues to show early gains in New York were Amalgamated Copper ¾, American Sugar ¼, Atchison ¾, Baltimore & Ohio 1¼, Chesapeake & Ohio ¾, Chino ¾, Lehigh Valley 1, Missouri Pacific ¼, New York Central ¾, New Haven ¾, Northern Pacific 1¼, Reading ½, Southern Pacific ¾, St. Paul 2¼, Union Pacific 1, U. S. Steel ¾, Utah Copper ½, Mexican Petroleum 6¾, Westinghouse ¼, U. S. Rubber ½ and Alaska Gold ½.

Among recessions were American Locomotive 1½, American Car & Foundry 1, Goodrich ¾, Inspiration ¼, Pennsylvania ¼, Canadian Pacific ½ and American Can ¼.

DAVIS-DALY VEIN.

A dispatch from Butte says the four-foot vein found at a depth of 2,500 feet in the Davis-Daly mine has been drifted for seventy-five feet and has the appearance of permanency. In Butte, it is stated, this vein is believed to be the one which will prove faulty on upper levels and that it has been picked up, as was hoped for, at a lower depth.

BETHLEHEM STEEL CONTROL.

It is claimed in New York that George F. Baker, Francis L. Hine and William H. Moore, or their representatives, will be elected Bethlehem Steel Corporation directorates at the next election. It is asserted in this connection there are good grounds for believing that Charles M. Schwab is no longer in undisputed control of the corporation. The Guaranty Bank of New York interests are said to have been large buyers of Bethlehem Steel stock since the exchange reopened in December last.

BIG WAR ORDERS.

While it is inclined to believe that the amount of war orders placed in this country has been greatly exaggerated, it is said that instead of the contracts recently awarded for shells totalling over $125,000,000 that $70,000,000 is nearer the amount. The orders placed with the American locomotive companies amount to about 40,000,000. Large orders were awarded the New York Air Brake and the Westinghouse companies.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

A seat on the New York Stock Exchange sold last week for $62,000, an advance of $2,000 over the last previous amount paid.

The Bank of Germany reports an increase of 8,015,000 marks in gold last week. Notes in circulation decreased 253,912,000 and deposits decreased 144,039,000 marks.

It is reported from Washington that the government suits against Corn Products Refining Company have reached an agreement under which the prosecution by the Department of Justice will cease.

The latest estimate of the decrease in cotton acreage in the South for this season is 18.6 per cent., against an estimate of 20.9 per cent. on March 12.

Germs Can't Stay With This Treatment

No Impurities Can Retain A Foothold—They're Driven Out.

The action of S. S. S., the famous blood purifier, is quick and thorough. It puts nutriment in the blood and makes it rich and pure. It does not lodge in the stomach. Unlike food that must be acted upon by the digestive juices, S. S. S. goes at once into the blood and in less than five minutes has traversed the entire circulation.

It now rapidly spreads its medicinal action in the fine network of blood vessels and is like giving the blood a thorough bath, to overcome eczema, blood risings, boils, carbuncles, sores or blood poisoning. It can not harm any part of the system. It does not lodge in the joints to do rheumatism, and other minerals frequently to be found in blood remedies, but is a natural medicine for the blood, just as essential to health if germs have gotten the upper hand as food is natural.

If after a spell of sickness the body calls for nourishment, give it to you so you are sure to meet some one who used S. S. S. for the blood and is a willing witness to its wonderful power to overcome blood troubles. You can obtain S. S. S. in almost any drug store in the U. S., a significant fact as to its worth and its sterling reputation. Get a bottle today. It will do you good. Write to The Swift Specific Co., 164 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., if the directions with the bottle do not fully cover your case.

BIG OPPORTUNITY IN TOUR CONTEST

Almost everyone, at some time or another, has looked forward to the day when he or she could contemplate a trip to the Pacific coast without worrying about the expenses of the vacation. To see California has become more of a desire—it has grown into a national longing.

Well, here is the opportunity made for YOU!

The Boston AMERICAN will take twenty-five people—and this means men, women, boys and girls, over sixteen years of age—on a de luxe trip to California, giving them such a trip, such a vacation as, even in their fondest dreams, they have never visualized.

The details of this marvellous offer appear on another page today. Read it now and decide to get one of these trips for yourself.

Drastic Measure Meets Sad Death

By J. C. KERRISON.

The efforts of the legislative committee to amend the present motor laws does not seem to have met with very commendable success during the sitting of the present Legislature. The majority of the bills upon which this committee has made a favorable report have been killed either in one house or the other and the automobile statutes remain much the same as they were at the opening of the present session.

The latest measure upon which the committee made a favorable report was really an opera bouffe, and was virtually laughed out of the House. The measure was that which provided that all vehicles before crossing a railroad or railway track at grade should bring the vehicle to a complete stop not less than twenty-five or more than one hundred feet from the nearer rail.

"God Made Plenty of City Lots, but Only a Few Sand Beaches"

The Members of the Legislature Should Keep in Mind These Words of a Land Speculator and Vote for the Amendment That Is to Restore to the People Their Rights

When the historian and the economist review the American political history of the last century from the perspective of another hundred years, they will undoubtedly find that the great failure of our country has been in its responsibility to future generations of our countrymen.

We have wasted nature's abundance with an unspeakable carelessness and even selfishness, knowing, if we gave it a thought, that we were stealing from our children. It is only within a few years, thanks largely to men like Theodore Roosevelt and Gifford Pinchot and to enterprises like the Hearst publications, that we have begun the work of conserving for the future the natural resources which we have wasted for a hundred years.

With a reckless and prodigal hand we gave the railroads vast tracts of land, richer in forest and mineral wealth than the riches of India. We allowed great areas of the most fertile soil to be appropriated by monopolists and held without labor against the rights of the honest husbandmen and against the interests of the nation, while the land monopolists are appropriating the increasing value of their land, to which their labor and intelligence contributed nothing and to which the industry, thrift and development of the country contributed everything. In Maine we have allowed whole principalities of virgin forests to be stolen from the public domain, without even a vigorous protest, to the enrichment of a few political grafters at the expense of the progress of that beautiful State.

We are allowing individuals to appropriate land on the seashore and under the protection of a stupid, unnatural, undemocratic, un-American rule of law, to make trespassers of the general public who seek to go down to the seashore and enjoy the great ocean which was made indivisible by nature and which the cunning of human exploiters has found no way to divide and appropriate except by appropriating the land which adjoins it. A stupid public has permitted this appropriation to go on without a care for the future, without a thought that as our population increases, a sea which was meant for the enjoyment of all will soon be in the hands of a few monopolists.

They are struggling over this very question now in the Massachusetts Legislature. Some land speculators have appropriated the beautiful Salisbury Beach and are building to the edge of the water and asking prices for their lots, with no modern conveniences, greater than for lots in the city. One of the gentlemen interested in this real estate speculation was asked on the witness stand how he explained the price demanded for these seashore lots, and he made this significant reply: "THE ANSWER IS THAT GOD MADE PLENTY OF CITY LOTS AND WILL CONTINUE TO MAKE THEM, BUT ONLY A FEW SAND BEACHES."

The AMERICAN hopes that the gentlemen of the Legislature will ponder over that answer and that the people of Massachusetts will give it the thought that it deserves. In that pregnant sentence is the whole story of the monopolist and the exploiter.

The people of the Merrimac Valley have aroused themselves against this attempt to appropriate Salisbury Beach. They succeeded in obtaining a law enabling them to restore to the public a right which the public ought never to have lost. But our Supreme Court, in one of its strange decisions, struck down the law, holding it unconstitutional.

Now the people of Merrimac Valley have come back to the Legislature with a constitutional amendment and this amendment has passed the Legislature once. The struggle this year is to pass it the second time, so that it may be submitted to all the people of the State.

Unfortunately, the amendment, too narrowly drawn, is made applicable only to Salisbury Beach. It should be general in its power and let the people take back to themselves all our waterfront, because "GOD MADE ONLY A FEW SAND BEACHES."

But let the pending amendment pass. Then let us have a general excess condemnation law and let us take all the beaches and hold them in trust for future generations. Let us abandon the miserable philosophy of that shameful French king who said: "This will last as long as we do; after us, the deluge."

As the worthy father wants to leave his children in better circumstances than he himself enjoyed, so we should want to leave to our American posterity at least what we have enjoyed.

The Fight for Savings Bank Insurance Is Won

The fight for the savings bank insurance is won. The bill providing for the advertising to the people the benefits of this insurance is now in the hands of the Governor. This is a notable victory for Governor Walsh and for the people of Massachusetts.

During the progress of the contest over this bill, the AMERICAN called public attention to the fact that savings bank insurance had saved the people of Massachusetts more than $2,000,000 a year in insurance and the people of the United States more than $70,000,000.

The savings banks give cheaper insurance and better conditions of policy than the private insurance companies now give after the improvements of their policies, following the inaugu[ration] of the savings bank insurance.

[Massa]chusetts citizens ought to inquire of the savings bank [com]munity concerning this important institution and they [thank] Governor Walsh for his effort to promote it.

A Letter from Mr. Brandeis

William Randolph Hearst, Esq.:

My Dear Mr. Hearst: The Boston AMERICAN has performed an important service to the wage-earners of Massachusetts, and indeed to the whole country. Through its efficient support and generous publicity it has contributed in large measure to the success of Governor Walsh's efforts to provide for the extension of the scope and usefulness of our savings bank life insurance system. His first recommendation to increase to $1,000 the amount of insurance which may be issued by any bank on any one life was enacted into law on March 2, 1915. His second recommendation—to provide means for making known to the people the opportunity afforded for securing life insurance which is both safe and cheap—was enacted into law today.

Our struggle to establish people's life insurance is of more than local significance. The success attained is more than securing to the workingman a necessary of life at the lowest possible cost. This Massachusetts success shows how a State may help the workingman to help himself.

Prior to 1907 life insurance in small amounts called "Industrial insurance" was furnished to the workingman only by private companies. The premium charged therefor to the wage-earner was about twice the premium charged for "ordinary" life insurance. The premiums paid were in large part wasted; because two-thirds of the industrial policies written lapsed within three years from the date of issue without the payment of a cent to the policyholder. Nearly half of what was paid in premiums was consumed in expenses. The stockholders of the largest industrial life insurance companies received annually an equivalent of 28 per cent. on the cash actually paid in on the capital stock. The stockholders of the next largest were even more fortunate—receiving every year dividends equal to 220 per cent. on the cash actually paid in on the capital stock.

In view of these conditions Massachusetts undertook in 1907, in spite of dire predictions from the private companies and financial interests, to provide her wage-earners with life insurance in small amounts by utilizing the savings banks for this purpose. Under its new system the expense of solicitation of applications and of weekly collection of premiums was eliminated by prohibiting the banks from employing paid solicitors. The payment of dividends to stockholders was eliminated, because our savings banks have no stockholders, and are conducted wholly for the benefit of the depositors.

Thus the State enabled the banks to offer life insurance at premiums about thirty per cent. less than those previously charged by the private companies. But the savings bank insurance is mutual insurance. The policyholders are entitled to a return of such portion of the premium paid as is not required to pay death losses or for the actual expense incident to the conduct of the business, and the setting aside of adequate reserves and surplus. The result of the system has been to give to those whose policies have been in force seven years a return dividend averaging nearly 24 per cent. of all premiums paid. The net cost to the holder of these policies has therefore been about 45 per cent. less than he would have had to pay prior to the establishment of savings bank insurance.

Massachusetts, having established the safety and economy of its People's Life Insurance system, has now extended its usefulness:

FIRST—Through publicity—that is, teaching the people that this opportunity for saving exists.

SECOND—Through increasing the limit of the policy in each bank to $1,000—thus extending its benefits to those who, like the more prosperous wage-earners, salaried people, small tradesmen and farmers, would wish larger policies. There are four banks, so that a resident of Massachusetts may obtain $4,000 of absolutely safe insurance at a cost lower than such insurance has been furnished by any company.

The benefits conferred by the Massachusetts system are not, however, confined to Massachusetts residents, nor to those who have taken savings bank insurance policies. Through the competitive system established, Massachusetts has secured a reduction of about 20 per cent. in the cost of all industrial insurance throughout the country. This results in a saving to the wage-earners of Massachusetts of about $2,000,000 a year; but the saving to the wage-earners of the whole country reaches $20,000,000 a year.

In no way can your papers aid workingmen more than by continuing your work of educating them in this opportunity of reducing their cost of living.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

More Truth Than Poetry

Justifiable Inference

John D. Rockefeller's lawyer says there can't be any law that would countenance taking $1,250,000 in taxes away from his client. We can well believe him. There never has been such a law that anybody ever heard of.

The Curse of Work

I'D like to sit 'round every day and watch the Braves or Red Sox play,
I'd like to go and see a show
Whenever I felt tired;
I'd like to sail a boat around the dimpling inlets of Broad Sound,
But I don't dare, for I'm aware
These things would get me fired.

WHEN Spring paints all the woodlands green I'd like to loiter in some scene
Where playful trout were leaping out
Of some clear crystal brook;
I'd like to feel them tug my line and see their silver bilges shine,
But though, no doubt, I'd bag the trout
I'm sure I'D get the hook.

I KNOW some men who in the Spring don't ever do a single thing
Except to play through each glad day
With easy unconcern.
But how to journey here and there and breathe the vernal country air
And draw my pay while I'm away
Is something I can't learn.

Short Sighted Poet

Voice of the Voiceless Must Be Heard, Says Ella Wheeler Wilcox

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

I AM the voice of the voiceless;
Through me the dumb shall speak,
Till the deaf world's ear be made to hear
The cry of the wordless weak.
From street, from cage, and from kennel,
From jungle and stall, the wail
Of my tortured kin proclaims the sin
Of the mighty against the frail.

The same force formed the sparrow
That fashioned Man, the King;
The God of the Whole gave a spark of soul
To each furred and feathered thing.
And I am my brother's keeper,
And I will fight his fight,
And speak the word for beast and bird,
Till the world shall set things right.

IT would seem that in this critical hour the clergymen of the world, who consider themselves God's mouthpieces, ought to be very careful in their utterances. There was never a time in the history of the world when theology stood on such shaking ground as it stands today. The edifice of orthodoxy (as it has been presented by modern representatives to the world) rests on an insecure foundation. It must be rebuilt with better material. It seems incredible, then, that so prominent a man as the Bishop of Oxford, the Right Reverend Charles Gore, should write a pastoral letter which will cause the house of orthodoxy to tremble still more dangerously, and make it seem an unsafe edifice to all large hearted and right thinking people.

The Bishop of Oxford has written a letter to his diocese prohibiting prayers for the animals engaged in war because he says: "It has never been the custom of the church to pray for other beings than those whom we think of as rational." This is a distinct step backward toward bigotry, ignorance, and lovelessness in religious thought. It is this sort of cold, unhumanitarian creed which has made the Church of England such a dead letter in the way of progress.

If the world had taken no step forward in religious thought and had always rested on the slogan, "It has never been the custom to do this," where would humanity stand today? It was only by doing things which were not customary with the past generations that Henry Bergh came before the world and declared that animals had rights.

The Church of England has a somewhat higher authority than the Bishop of Oxford for a belief that animal life is dear to the Creator. Christ said, speaking of sparrows, "Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing? And one of them shall not fall on the ground without your Father." If all created life, even to the insignificant sparrow, is dear to the Father, would He not then be glad to have prayers rise from human hearts for all animal life? Perhaps the Bishop of Oxford does not think that there are prayers enough to go around!

I would advise the Bishop to read that great book, "The Universal Kinship." It is a scientific epic in the line of humanitarianism. Here is a quotation from it that would make better reading for the diocese of the Bishop of Oxford than his pastoral letter:

"Look upon and treat all life as you do your own hands, your own eyes, your very heart and soul—with infinite care and compassion—as suffering and enjoying members of the same Great Being with yourself. This is the spirit of the ideal universe—the spirit of your own being. It is this alone that can redeem this world, and give to it the peace and harmony for which it longs.

Oh, the madness, and sorrow, and unbrotherliness of this man wrought world! Oh, the poor, weak, poisoned, monstrous natures of its children! Who can look upon it all without pain and sympathy and consternation, and tears? What an opportunity for philanthropy, if the "Almighty One" of our traditions would only set about it!

"Let us be true to our ideals, true to the spirit of universal compassion—whether we walk with the feathered forms of the fields and forests, the kine of the meadows, the simple savage on the banks of the river, or the outcasts of human industry."

Oh, this poor world, this poor, suffering, ignorant, fear-filled world! How can men be blind or deranged enough or cold and satanic enough to be unmoved by the groans and anguish, the writhing and tears, that come up from its unparalleled afflictions?

If to do good is to generate welfare, then to cause welfare to a horse, a bird, a butterfly, or a fish, is to do good just as truly as to cause welfare to men. And if to do evil is to cause unhappiness and ill-fare, then to cause these things to one individual or race is evil just as certainly as to cause them to any other individual or race. And if to put one's self in the place of others, and to act toward them as one would wish them to act toward him, is the one great rule—the Golden Rule—by which men are to gauge their conduct when acting toward each other, then this is also the one great rule—the Golden Rule by which men are to regulate their conduct toward all beings. There is no escape from these conclusions, except for the savage and the fool.

A NIGHTMARE

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

LAST night I dreamed that I had lived since human life began
And had a lasting friendship for old Adam, the first man;
I dreamed in swift succession of a million great events
Well known by college students and their learned presidents.
But in each panoramic view, with each historic throb,
The everlasting tango was serenely on the job.

I dreamed that Cain and Abel, ere the fatal fight began,
Had tangoed up and down the lane much on the modern plan;
I dreamed that old Mark Antony, with many a Roman yelp,
Tangoed with Cleopatra till her corns cried out for help.
I dreamed that dauntless Bonaparte and all his army bold
Tangoed back home from Moscow and forgot that it was cold.

Old Noah and his animals, jammed in the crowded ark,
Tangoed from morn till twilight, and tangoed in the dark.
George Washington cut down his tree, admitted he was bad,
And tangoed to the woodshed for a session with his dad.
At morn my nightmare ended, but my nerves were so a-jerk,
I tangoed down the bedroom stairs and tangoed to my work.

The man who is successful in dodging the collector generally makes the best collector.

A peekaboo waist will often give fellows old enough to know better the swivel neck habit.

It is difficult for a man to love his neighbor as himself and come out on top in every business deal.

If the modern golf stick had a lot of broom corn on one end it would not be half so popular.

Truth may not always be stranger than fiction, but it is generally more rare.

There is something wrong with the man who looks upon any charitable act with suspicion.

It is a satisfaction when paying the rent to realize that the landlord is going to be soaked for the taxes, anyhow.

The random shots of an aimless life seldom puncture many bullseyes.

It is difficult to select a hired mourner or an alienist who will not overdo the job.

The kittenish girl frequently has claws of the old cat.
